SKINNY KIBBLES

Around
And
About
Town

SKIRVIN

Le Ray Quick and his associates, Drs. Perry Davis and J. C. Ruley, have returned from Modoc county, where they hunted and dined with Bill Hamlin, the secluded host in the back country near the settlement of Lookout. Haven't talked with Quick to get the particulars of the trip, but indirectly I understand there was no excess of game in the section visited. Dr. Davis thought he saw five buck in one group, and started to shoot. Maybe he didn't see 'em. Anyway he didn't bring any of 'em home. Quick brought back some disturbing information. He says that Hamlin is coming down for a private interview, and is bringing his artillery with him. Now I'll bet Quick has told Hamlin that I said something uncomplimentary about him, and what worries me is that I'll have a hard time proving that I didn't.

Intercepted while adjusting my account with the Southern Counties Gas Co. by the manager of that pulsating institution, Fred Merker, who thought I should keep abreast of the times, and he shows me a long line of improvements taking place in the office which is for the purpose of increasing the accommodations both for employees and patrons. And then he tries to make me believe that the large machine located near the business section is an air condition mechanism which furnishes cool air in the summer and hot air in the winter, and I assume miscellaneous air during the other parts of the seasons. He insists it works. So now I got to wait for the various seasons to prove his statements, or else accept them on faith, and that seems to be the accustomed way of getting along these days. Regardless of explanation the "test of the pudding is in the eating," and in time we shall know what we shall see. The fact still remains that the business office at the gas company is a bee hive of contractual activity.

An observation: Balking automobile. Refuses to start, and what good is an automobile that won't run? So along comes a kindly disposed friend who gives it a push and the car runs so long as the push is on. Then it quiets down again and all is still except the owner. Kindly disposed friend has a time limit on his generosity and gas. He's en route to work. So further help comes from the occupants who try to get the car in motion, and do for a short distance. Another balk. So weak batteries and weak backs finally get together and indulge in a sit-down strike while one member of the party sends an SOS to the garage for help.

And then a friend comes in to explain to me that he has an oil proposition which is a cinch if they find oil.

'sfunny to me, this Saturday noon loitering around business and professional offices for the foursome to assemble for the afternoon golf. I haven't any objection to it. One person's enjoyment out of one kind of game and another out of some other kind of a game, and then there are fellows who get no enjoyment out of any kind of a game. The latter belong to the short-tailed decadent crustaceans—commonly called crab. I can get a lot of kick out of just mentally following a group of friends who play golf. It isn't necessary for me to see them in actual performance. I know that a pair of them is going to lose and another pair is going to win, and that they will all reach the same level at the nineteenth hole. That's the only part of the game I miss.

Bob Turner comes home from Pomona with a hard-luck story. Mentally he picked seven winners, so he tells me. His natural timidity prevented him from making out one bet. Bob's horse was going good until something happened. Coming down the home stretch the selection on which he placed his judgment was two lengths ahead of all competitors. Then the prospective winner stumbled and threw the jockey for a loop, and Bob's money went along with him.

Well, it will soon be time for the

Judge Coburn, Wife Killed

Runaway Car Kills Youth in Wild Ride Down Long Grade

Couple Plunge 228 Ft. in Car

Heading back toward his home in Orange after a leisurely Sunday drive in San Diego county, City Judge Lewis F. Coburn was driving intently as he proceeded along the winding, snake-like inland highway near Fallbrook. Suddenly a sweeping curve, more treacherous than the others, loomed in front of the elderly Orange county pioneer. He spun the steering wheel, the tires screamed, but it was too late.

The big sedan hurtled over an embankment, rolled over and over and crashed into a small creek—228 feet below the highway—carrying Judge Coburn's wife to instant death and fatally injuring the judge.

DIED THIS MORNING
Judge Coburn, thrown from the car as it careened down the embankment, was rushed to Escondido community hospital, where he died of head injuries at 8:30 a. m. today. Mrs. Coburn's body was found in the wrecked car a few minutes after the accident by a passing motorist who heard the sickening noise of the crash and rushed down to the mangled auto.

Two other passengers—Miss Ruth Coburn, a niece of Judge and Mrs. Coburn, and Miss Carrie D. Adams, 40, 221 West Whiting street, Fullerton—were seriously but not critically injured. Miss Coburn sustained a compound fracture of the left leg and Miss Adams' back was severely bruised.

BOTH WERE PROMINENT
The accident occurred four miles south of Fallbrook late in the afternoon.

The Coburns had left their home, 133 North Cambridge street, Orange, at 8:30 a. m. yesterday for a Sunday outing.

Judge Coburn, 83, and his wife, Mrs. Ella C. Coburn, 65, had been prominent in nearly every civic undertaking for the past 20 years. City judge of Orange since May, 1936, Mr. Coburn had served as city attorney for many years. He and his wife moved to Orange from the Yreka district in 1918.

The judge was one of the organizers of the Orange Chamber of Commerce and was named its first president in 1921. He was

Backward Ride Is Fatal to Hughes

Because a model T Ford didn't make the grade, Ramon Hughes, 23, El Modena, lay dead in a Santa Ana mortuary today, the sixty-sixth victim of a fatal traffic crash in Orange county this year.

Passenger in an aged car driven by Simon N. Sariana, 21, also of El Modena, Hughes was killed almost instantly in a freak accident in the Panorama heights district yesterday morning.

Sariana had started up a steep grade on Fairhaven avenue a quarter of a mile east of Foothill avenue. Halfway to the top, the motor began sputtering; then it gave a final chug and stalled.

The brakes failed as the car began slipping down the steep road, and as it gathered momentum, Sariana tried vainly to keep it on the road. After rolling 129 yards, it crashed into an embankment and jack-knifed over on its side.

Hughes, an employee of the county flood control project, showed some signs of life but died on the way to the Orange county hospital.

Sariana was not injured, and the car was only slightly damaged. Coroner Earl Abbey scheduled an inquest at 3 p. m. this afternoon in the Smith & Tuthill funeral parlors, where Hughes' body was taken.

END COMES FOR JOHN VOGT

John C. Vogt, 80, local retired walnut rancher, died at the family home on East Sixth street, Santa Ana, early yesterday morning.

Mr. Vogt had been a resident of Santa Ana for the past 35 years. He was born in Michigan and came to California for a few years' stay on one of the first trains on the Santa Fe railroad. He returned to Michigan, but later came back.

He is survived by one son, S. S. Vogt of Santa Ana; one brother, C. C. Vogt of Waldport, Ore.; one sister, Mrs. Martha Lucas of Portland, Ore.; and one grandchild, Mrs. Ralph Gordon of Santa Ana. Funeral services will be conducted from the First Evangelical church, Tenth and Main streets, Santa Ana, at 10 a. m. Wednesday, under the direction of Hilgenfeld home, Anaheim. Interment will be in the family plot at Fairhaven.

PIGS IS PIGS

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

Copyright by Ellis Parker Butler

Editor's Note: "Pigs Is Pigs" is published as a little tribute to the memory of its famous author and as a special treat for our readers.

CHAPTER ONE

Mike Flannery, the Westcoast agent of the Interurban Express Company, leaned over the counter of the express office and shook his fist. Mr. Morehouse, angry and red, stood on the other side of the counter, trembling with rage. The argument had been long and heated, and at last Mr. Morehouse had talked himself speechless. The cause of the trouble stood on the counter between the two men. It was a soap box across the top of which were nailed a number of strips, forming a rough but serviceable cage. In it two spotted guinea-pigs were greedily eating lettuce leaves.

"Do as you loike, then!" shouted Flannery, "pay for thim an' take thim, or don't pay for thim and leave thim be. Rules is rules, Misher Morehouse, an' Mike Flannery's not goin' to be called down fer breakin' of thim."

"But, you everlastingly stupid idiot!" shouted Mr. Morehouse, madly shaking a flimsy printed book beneath the agent's nose, "can't you read it here—in your own printed rat's? 'Pigs, domestic, Franklin to Westcoast, if properly boxed, twenty-five cents each.' He threw the book on the counter in disgust. "What more do you want? Aren't they pets? Aren't they domestic? Aren't they properly boxed? What?"

He turned and walked back and forth rapidly, frowning ferociously. Suddenly he turned to Flannery, and forcing his voice to an artificial calmness spoke slowly but with intense sarcasm.

"Pigs," he said. "P-e-t-s! Twenty-five cents each. There are two of them. One! Two! Two times twenty-five are fifty! Can you understand that? I offer you fifty cents."

Flannery reached for the book. He ran his hand through the pages and stopped at page sixty-four.

"An' I don't take fifty cents," he whispered in mockery. "Here's the rule for ut. 'Whin the agent be in anny doubt regardin' which of two rates applies to a ship-"

Chicago Kidnaping Demands Awaited
CHICAGO. (P)—Fatigued and grief-stricken, Mrs. Charles S. Ross sat nervously near a telephone in her luxurious apartment today—still hopeful that the abductors of her husband, a wealthy retired manufacturer, "will call me and make their demands so I'll know what to do."

"They've kidnaped him, but I don't know why," she said last night as the 24th hour passed since the 72-year-old former greeting card manufacturer was forced into a car by one of three gunmen.

"I haven't heard a word from the kidnapers," she added, "but I'm sure I will. Oh, if they will only call me and make their demands so I'll know what to do."

Meanwhile, Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police threw all of his department's resources into the search for the night while he was driving home from a dinner engagement with Miss Florence Freheage, 45, his former secretary.

U. S. department of justice agents were reported to have been called into the case, but A. H. Johnson, acting head of the Chicago bureau, declined to comment.

FOLLOWED BY CAR
Miss Freheage, described by Mrs. Ross as a "fine woman" and a "friend of the family," said her former employer invited her to dinner to discuss matters pertaining to the Valentine and greeting card company (Carrington) which he headed until his retirement two years ago. Miss Freheage is secretary for one of the new owners.

FDR IGNORES 'PETTY' FIGHTS

BOISE, Idaho. (P)—President Roosevelt told a large crowd at the capital grounds here today that on his current trip he was thinking more of the "bigger things," such as a wider distribution of control of industry and a better agriculture rather than the "petty" quarrels of the day.

Facing a crowd estimated by local police at around 10,000, the President said he was trying to think about planning, how to make a better nation for the future generations, a more prosperous agriculture, timber conservation, a better coordination of industrial activities, and a wider distribution of control of industry.

Senators Borah (R., Idaho) and Pope (D., Idaho) were in the official automobile party which paraded for an hour with the President through the Idaho capital's crowded streets.

When the President mentioned a "wider distribution of the control of industrial activities," he said parenthetically, "that sounds like Senator Borah," bringing laughter from the audience spread out on the broad grounds at the foot of the mountains.

He asserted he also was thinking of the "influence" the United States can have on the rest of the world in bringing about peace, adding another aside "that sounds like Senator Pope and Borah too."

CONVICTS RIOT AT QUENTIN
SAN QUENTIN. (P)—Another disturbance in a California prison, the third within eight days, led to the shooting of a convict in San Quentin today by a guard.

The convict, Cecil Duncan, 28-year-old negro, was shot from a guard tower as he and another convict fought in the prison yard and ignored warnings to stop.

Other convicts, marching from breakfast to their daily duties, witnessed the affair, but did not interfere.

The incident, while involving only the two fighting convicts, brought quick action from the guard because of the recent bloody outbreak at Folsom state prison and the slugging of Warden James Johnston at Alcatraz federal prison.

300 Chinese Slain By Submarine; U.S. Business Menaced

Soviet Russia warned Japan today against "lawless" bombardment of Nanking, China's capital. Both Russia and Japan were reported at Tokyo to have huge bodies of troops along the already heavily guarded frontier of Siberia and Manchoukoo.

Russia bluntly notified Japan that her Nanking embassy would not be evacuated and that the Japanese government would be held fully responsible for any damage by bombardment.

Meanwhile, Japanese war planes hummed about Nanking, bombing suburbs. From Hongkong, British crown colony, came reports that a Japanese submarine had sunk a fleet of Chinese fishing junks off the south China coast, killing 300.

American businessmen in Shanghai complained that Japan had installed her own customs house there. If such control remains, they declared, it would mean the end of many American and foreign-owned businesses in the settlement.

Fishing Fleet Is Wiped Out by Sub

HONGKONG. (P)—Ten survivors declared today 300 men, women and children were killed when a Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese fishing junks off Cheelung point on the South China coast.

Some of the junks were understood to be sailing under British registry and authorities of this British naval base started an immediate investigation. The 10 survivors, themselves all wounded, and their ghastly tale of war on the high seas were brought here aboard the German liner Scharnhorst.

They asserted the Japanese submarine rose to the surface suddenly while they were fishing off Cheelung point, Sept. 22. The underwater craft opened fire and sank junk after junk.

While the wounded and dying, including 100 women and children, struggled in the water, the submarine steamed away. The survivors said no effort was made to pick up any of the victims.

TROOPS MASSING
To meet the Soviet threat, picked Manchoukoo troops were said to be massing on the opposite side of the frontier in the hill country north of the Korean peninsula.

Russia was reported in the dispatches to have placed particularly large numbers of warplanes at strategic points along the border.

Tokyo newspapers devoted columns of space to reports of a secret military alliance between Russia and China.

Tokyo newspapers were unanimous in charging indignantly that the Soviet was responsible for the stiff resistance of the Chinese army and for the delaying tactics adopted both on the North China and the Shanghai fronts.

RUSS-CHINA ALLIANCE
They charged the Russian ambassador to China had conferred lengthily with the Chinese premier, Chiang Kai-Shek, and "virtually commanded" the Chinese commander to accept the Russian tactics and wage a protracted war against Japan.

This, with an increased number of recent incidents, has caused a

OVERDUE BOAT REACHES PORT

A frantic 30-hour search for William Lester, prominent Newport boat company official missing at sea since Friday morning, ended happily late Saturday when Lester's crippled speed-boat limped safely into San Clemente.

Lester left San Diego at 10 a. m. Friday in a 22-foot speed-boat, planning to bring the craft to Newport harbor. He was expected between 2 and 4 p. m. When he had not arrived by late Friday night, coast guard planes and rescue boats began scouring a wide area between Newport and San Diego.

Minister to Austria Dies
VIENNA. (P)—The body of Grenville T. Emmet, United States minister to Austria, lay today in a hotel room where the 50-year-old diplomat died suddenly yesterday of double pneumonia just two weeks after taking over actual charge of his legation.

Mrs. Emmet, who was summoned to Vienna from Paris where she had preceded her husband on a planned trip to the United States to attend their son's wedding, was severely shaken.

WHY RISK THEIR LIVES?
By BRADEN FINCH
Driving to work, I saw a tow-headed youngster on a bicycle just miss death or injury by inches.

He was riding out Flower street during the rush-to-work hour and was nearly hooked on the bumper of a passing sedan.

It seems dangerous to force schoolboys and girls to ride their bikes in the streets. They would be much safer on the sidewalks; and in the residential area where there aren't many pedestrians, they wouldn't endanger walkers. Maybe Police Chief Howard, who has a bright young son of his own, can do something about this in his safety drive.

FATHER SCORES 'NEGLECT' FOR CRASH DEATH OF INJURED YOUTH

CLAIMS SON LAY BESIDE ROAD 1 HOUR

Charge Hurlled in S. A. Damage Suit Trial

"My boy was lying in the road alongside the car, covered with a blanket... there wasn't a thing done for him until the ambulance got there about an hour later... he died at the hospital."

This was the story told to Presiding Superior Judge H. G. Ames today by Henry A. Mitchell of Garden Grove, whose 22-year-old son was fatally injured last Jan. 20 in an auto accident at West Chapman and Magnolia avenues near Garden Grove.

SEEK $28,000 Mitchell, his wife and 16-year-old Virginia Mitchell are suing Bryan Jones, driver of the other car, and Mildred Jones for $28,000 for the death of Henry A. Mitchell, Jr., and injury to the girl, who was riding with the victim at the time of the crash.

The father testified he arrived shortly after the accident, and said no ambulance arrived for an hour after that. The boy died 15 minutes after being admitted to St. Joseph hospital, he added.

HIT LEFT SIDE Jones' car, the Mitchells allege, crashed into the left side of the Mitchell car after the latter had made a boulevard stop at the intersection and was proceeding slowly through the crossing. The girl, who asks $2500 for her injuries, told the court today she did not see Jones' lights until the other car was 80 feet from the car in which she was riding, driven by her brother.

300 CHINESE KILLED BY SUBMARINE

The environs of Nanking, the capital, down the Yangtze river, were bombed but Chinese pursuit planes turned back the attackers from the city proper.

A series of heavy explosions rocked Shanghai as Japanese warships and land batteries opened a heavy fire on the north station area. Several shells struck near the British barracks on the north border of the international settlement.

American importers bringing goods into Shanghai on Japanese boats declared the Japanese had established customs depots in the Japanese-occupied Yangtze and Hongkew areas of the international settlement and were collecting duty on all imports.

A Chinese spokesman declared that they had broken the Japanese attack on the northwestern flank of the battle line in the Liuhong and Lotien sector and recaptured three additional villages.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's first ranking officer, General Chu Shao-Liang, relieved General Chang Chih-Tsung of the command of the Chinese forces in Shanghai today. No reason was given for the change.

Calm and smiling behind war maps and dispatches, Gen. Chu said he was confident of an ultimate Chinese victory no matter how many reinforcements the Japanese may bring in.

LEAGUE COMMITTEE BLASTS JAPANESE GENEVA. (AP)—The 23 nation League of Nations advisory committee on the Far East tonight adopted a resolution condemning bombardment of Chinese towns by Japanese airplanes.

The resolution will be submitted to the League of Nations assembly tomorrow.

From now until after the Rose Bowl game we are to be regaled with play by play football games. You get 'em as you go along the street, your neighbor throws 'em into your open window, via radio, and if you escape the announcements you are either dead or in bad luck. I am delighted when the season is over, and so are some of the players but they won't admit it. I wouldn't recognize a lateral pass from free newspaper transportation to the Pomona fair, but I do recognize it is one of the most popular of national sport events, and newspapers and colleges pay a lot of money to report the news and get the players.

All of the popularity evidence is again 'me, so all I can do is to take it, and await the New Year, which seems to be the official demise of the game, until it breaks out again later in the year. Football is like history—it repeats itself.

SPAIN SEEKS LEAGUE'S AID IN STRUGGLE

GENEVA. (AP)—Julia Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish government delegate to the League of Nations, demanded today that the league "call the bluff" of Germany and Italy, "this two-headed monster which appears to want to declare war on all Europe."

The young former minister of foreign affairs created a tense atmosphere with his impassioned appeal and condemnation of German and Italian intervention in the Spanish civil war on the side of the insurgents.

Del Vayo demanded the adoption of five proposals presented by Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, to the league assembly. They are:

1. Recognition of Italian and German aggression.

2. Study of ways to restrain it.

3. Granting of rights to the Spanish government to buy war materials freely.

4. Withdrawal of all non-Spanish combatants.

5. Extension of the protection of the Nyon anti-piracy patrol to the Valencia regime's shipping on the Mediterranean.

He told the committee, "the other party to the Spanish conflict, if you wish to reduce the problem to personal terms, as Hitler and Mussolini."

"If the democratic countries declare a collective decision—before it is too late—that peace shall be preserved, neither Germany nor Italy nor the two together dare to start a European war."

"In one or two years it may be too late."

"The free peoples of the world are waiting patiently to emerge from this humiliating situation created by the terrorism of two powers whose lust for hegemony feeds most upon infirmity of purpose!" he shouted.

City Officials 'Jailed' At Employees' Picnic

City employees turned the tables on elective officers at their picnic Saturday afternoon in Santiago creek park. They arrested the elective officers, and tossed 'em in a jail made from a trailer. And they wouldn't let them out until they paid their fines.

But this was only part of the fun. The afternoon's program opened with a ball game, in which the city hall team trounced the aggregation from the city garage by a score of 8 to 7. In the second game, the fire department beat the street and water department team, 7 to 6.

The playoff was held after dinner, resulting in a win for the fire department over the city hall nine. The score was 15 to 7. The fire department was awarded the championship cup for a year. The cup must be won three years before a department can meet it.

Other sports events were enjoyed throughout the afternoon, including ball throwing contests, novelty races, etc. Purchasing Agent Lloyd Banks and his secretary, Ruby Bush, won the door prizes.

Hunter Leach was chairman of the planned pot-luck dinner, and Fire Chief John Luxembourg was in charge of the entertainment, which included dances and songs by Vera Getty's Clever Kids, and music by Russell Thompson's Hawaiian trio. Park Commissioner Ernest H. Layton acted as master of ceremonies.

DE MOLAY EVENT Annual De Molay installation will take place in the Masonic temple at 8 p. m. tomorrow, followed by a dance in the ballroom. Clyde Files will be installed master counselor; Herbert Lyeon, senior counselor; and Ralph Pagenkopp, junior counselor.

FRISCO STRIKE AREA QUIET

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—The greatest mass demonstration of labor on the San Francisco waterfront this year broke up peacefully today after AFL teamsters opened their picket line to permit 60 CIO Longshoremen to begin working cargo.

The only threat of trouble came when Eugene Dietrich, longshoreman reportedly attempting to form a new AFL union of dock workers, accepted an invitation from Henry Schmidt, president of local CIO longshoremen, to address the men from a sound truck. The men shouted Dietrich down and began advancing toward him. Police came to his rescue.

Hippo Likes PWA
Pond But Knows It
Isn't the Nile

OMON IN
Bungo, pet hippo in the Washington zoo, tiptoes to the water's edge of his new PWA home, with murals of his old habitat, the Nile, in the background.

THE WATER'S FINE
Skeptical for a moment, Bungo decided he'll take a chance. It's water, all right, and there's nothing like a morning dip to brace up a homesick hippo.

YOU'RE TELLING ME!
Bungo splashes and grunts with great glee. This certainly beats a cage any time. But it's not quite up to the Nile. No reason to be hypocritical about it.

of the parking space of the hotel where we dined. It followed us for a great distance.

"Finally Mr. Ross remarked that the car behind him was shining its lights onto his mirror. 'I think I'll draw over to the side and let it by,' he said. One man jumped out. He was young. He thrust a pistol at Mr. Ross and yelled that he'd shoot unless the door was opened.

SECRETARY ROBBED
"Mr. Ross obeyed and at his command got out of the car. I think there were two other men in the car. . . the one with the pistol said, 'This is a match; my boss told me to bring you along.'

"I took Mr. Ross over to the other car. Then he returned and took $85 out of my purse. He says, 'You're his secretary; is he good for a half million or a quarter million?' I assured him Mr. Ross had no such wealth.

"The man paid no attention to that. 'You get down on the floor of the car,' he said. 'If you get up I'll shoot you.'

Miss Freinagel drove Ross' car to a filling station where she notified police.

Capt. Gilbert announced he was entirely satisfied with Miss Freinagel's story. She was released after being held as a material witness.

PICKETING THREAT HERE SUBSIDES

Threatened picketing of a downtown meat market to make union organization 100 per cent in the meatcutters' union, failed to materialize today.

Steve Davidson, business agent for the union, said he does not think picketing of the market will be necessary now in order to accomplish purposes of the union. He said he would know the exact condition in a short time, but believed the market would sign the contracts.

RULES AGAINST PICKETS
Picketing of the market was threatened despite a ruling by City Attorney Law Blodgett that Santa Ana's anti-loitering ordinance would outlaw pickets. Labor leaders do not believe the law would apply to peaceful picketing.

Contracts for the meatcutters went into effect last Monday. Davidson said, with the result the butchers' city received an average wage increase of $5 a week. Some were raised as much as $10, he said, while others were getting good wages did not get raises.

54-HOUR WEEK
With shop hours from 8 to 6 on week days and 8 to 7 on Saturdays, butchers now work 54 hours a week, while in some cases before butchers had to work as many as 90 hours a week, Davidson said. Union butchers now cannot sell meat after hours or on holidays without violating their contract.

Davidson said the union has been getting fine cooperation from local stores.

serious crisis in relations between Russia and Japan. The Soviet has been charged by Japan with illegal seizure of Japanese fishing vessels. Russia counter-charged that Japan had violated its operating agreements for the Sakhalin island coal concessions.

RUSSIA DEFIES JAPAN IN WARNING
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government sharply rebuffed its tone toward Japan with a stern warning against "lawless" bombardment of Nanking in what was believed to be a response to a Chinese appeal for aid against Japanese attack.

The official organ of the Soviet government, Izvestia, pointed out without comment, the Chinese note asking Russia "to take measures which would help and quickly suppress warlike and inhuman activities" as Japanese bombardments.

Government circles did not disclose what steps Russia might take to enter the undeclared Sino-Japanese war, particularly if Japanese warplanes should bomb the Russian embassy at Nanking.

The Soviet government defied Japan to bomb its embassy in Nanking in the "determined protest" which was presented officially to the Japanese foreign minister, Koki Hirota, in Tokyo yesterday by Russian Ambassador Mikhail Mikhailovich Slavutsky.

The note declared officials of the Soviet embassy had been instructed to remain at their posts and warned the Japanese government it would be held fully responsible for any damage or injury from bombardment of the embassy in Nanking.

Soviet officials said that Japan had notified Russia that Chinese were planning to draw Russia into the conflict by falsely marking their planes to represent Japanese craft and then bombing the Soviet embassy.

Whether any attack on the Soviet embassy was "intentional" or accidental, Russia told Japan, she would be held completely responsible for "any" attack on the Soviet embassy.

The note rejected the Japanese suggestion that Soviet officials and Soviet citizens evacuate Nanking as "unlawful, contrary to generally recognized principles of international law," and "unprecedented in the history of international relations."

'Pigs Is Pigs,' and How They Do Produce Families!

ment, he shall charge the larger. The consign-ey may file a claim for the overcharge. In this case, Mr. Morehouse, I be in doubt. Pigs thim animals may be, an' domestic they be, but pigs I'm blame sure they do be, an' me rules says plain as the nose on yer face, 'Pigs Franklin to West-coat, thirty cents each.' An', Mister Morehouse, by me arithmetical knowledge two times thirty comes to sixty cents."

Mr. Morehouse shook his head savagely. "Nonsense!" he shouted, "confounded nonsense, I tell you! Why, you poor ignorant foreigner, that rule means common pigs, domestic pigs, not guinea-pigs!"

Flannery was stubborn. "Pigs is pigs," he declared firmly. "Guinea-pigs or dago pigs or Irish pigs is all the same to the Interurban Express Company an' to Mike Flannery. Th' nationality of the pig creates no differentiality in the rate, Mister Morehouse! 'Would be the same way was they Dutch pigs or Rooshun pigs. Mike Flannery," he added, "is here to find to the express business and not to hold conversation wid dago pigs in sivilized languages fer to discover be they Chinese or Tipperary by birth an' nativity."

Mr. Morehouse hesitated. He bit his lip and then flung out his arms wildly. "Very well!" he shouted, "you shall hear of this! Your president shall hear of this! It is an outrage! I have offered you fifty cents. You refuse it! Keep the pigs until you are ready to give the fifty cents, but, by George, sir, if one hair of those pigs' heads is harmed I will have the law on you!"

He turned and stalked out, slamming the door. Flannery carefully lifted the soap box from the counter and placed it in a corner. He felt the fifty cents, but, by George, sir, if one hair of those pigs' heads is harmed I will have the law on you!"

Mr. Morehouse went home raging. His boy, who had been awaiting the guinea pigs, knew better than to ask him for them. He was a normal boy and therefore always had a guilty conscience when his father was angry. So the boy slipped around the house. There is nothing so soothing to a guilty conscience as to be out of the path of the avenger.

Mr. Morehouse stormed into the house. He entered the ink and shouted at his wife as soon as his foot was across the door.

Mrs. Morehouse jumped guiltily. She never used ink. She had not seen the ink, nor moved the ink, nor thought of the ink, but her husband's tone convicted her of the guilt of having done so and she knew that whenever her husband wanted anything in a loud voice the boy had been at it.

"I'll find Sammy," she said meekly.

When the ink was found Mr. Morehouse wrote rapidly and read the completed letter and smiled a triumphant smile.

"That will settle that crazy Irishman!" he exclaimed. "When they get that letter he will hunt another job, all right!"

A week later Mr. Morehouse received a long official envelope with the seal of the Interurban Express Company in the upper left corner. He tore it open eagerly and drew out a sheet of paper. At the top it bore the number A6754. The letter was short.

"Subject—Rate on guinea-pigs, it said. "Dr. Sir—We are in receipt of your letter regarding rate on guinea-pigs between Franklin and Westcoast, addressed to the president of this company. All claims for overcharge should be addressed to the Claims Department."

Mr. Morehouse wrote to the Claims Department. He wrote six pages of choice sarcasm, vituperation and argument, and sent them to the Claims Department.

A few weeks later he received a reply from the Claims Department. Attached to it was his last letter.

"Dear Sir," said the reply. "Your letter of the 16th inst., addressed to this Department, subject rate on guinea-pigs from Franklin to Westcoast, rec'd. We have taken up the matter with our agent at Westcoast, and his reply is attached herewith. He informs us that you refused to pay the charges. You have therefore no claim against this company, and your letter regarding the proper rate to be addressed to our Tariff Department."

Mr. Morehouse wrote to the Tariff Department. He stated his case clearly and gave his argument in full, quoting a page or two from the encyclopedia to prove that guinea-pigs were not common pigs.

With the care that characterizes corporations when they are systematically conducted, Mr. Morehouse's letter was numbered, O. K'd, and started through the regular channels. Duplicate copies of the bill of lading, manifest, Flannery's receipt for the package and several other pertinent papers were pinned to the letter, and they were passed to the head of the Tariff Department.

The head of the Tariff Department put his feet on his desk and yawned. He looked through the papers carelessly.

"Miss Kane," he said to his stenographer, "take this letter. Agent, Westcoast, N. J. Please advise why consignment referred to in attached papers was refused domestic pet rates."

Miss Kane made a series of curves and angles on her note book and waited with pencil poised. The head of the department looked at the papers again.

"Huh! guinea-pigs!" he said. "Probably starved to death by this time! Add this to that letter. Give condition of consignment at present."

He tossed the papers on to the stenographer's desk, took his feet from his own desk and went out to lunch.

ADULT CLASS WORK WILL OPEN TONIGHT

This, the opening night of the Lathrop and Willard Evening High schools brings several opportunities of special interest concerning gardens, reading habits and various other phases of self-expression, according to Mrs. Golden Weston, director.

At the Willard Evening High, J. F. McWilliams will open a course in first aid which will lead to a Red Cross certificate. Mrs. Ethel Lockwood will again offer her work in creative writing, and Mrs. Mariel White will begin a series of book reviews. She will present this evening one of the year's most popular books in the non-fiction field, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," by Dale Carnegie. She also will discuss Knopf's book, "The Art of Being a Woman."

The current tendency which includes the garden with the home as an area for living is to be stressed in the class in home landscape design, which opens tonight at Willard. Beauty of form growing out of practicality in design will be emphasized. Consideration will be given to the plan of the home garden in relation to the type of architecture as well as an expression of individual taste.

Frances S. Wilson, instructor, recently completed a thesis on the subject of garden fountains and received her master's degree with a major in fine arts and a minor in botany at the University of Southern California. She is associated with George J. Carpenter, landscape architect of Long Beach and a teacher of garden design at Long Beach Junior college.

All these are open from 7 to 9 p. m. The school gym classes also open tonight at the high school. All classes are open to the public. No tuition is charged, as they are a part of the school program arranged by the board of education.

LADIES AID
The Northwest section of the Ladies Aid society of the First Presbyterian church will meet at the home of Mrs. Milo K. Tedstrom, 2215 North Flower street, at 2 p. m. Friday afternoon.

Men's luggage differs from women's luggage in that its corners are square, while the corners of women's luggage are rounded.

"HEALTH AND BEAUTY
THROUGH
SCIENTIFIC SUPPORT"

Tomorrow (Tuesday) and Wednesday, at 2 p. m. daily on Rankin's second floor.

Every woman should see this motion picture, whether she has a figure problem or not! It demonstrates how scientific support can help Normal Figures look better and feel better by relieving strain and helping to improve posture. It also shows how various physical conditions are alleviated through anatomical support prescribed by physicians. Many of the models in the health sequence are actual patients from leading hospitals. This unique film was produced by S. H. Camp & Co. as part of their public health educational program. We urge all our customers to attend.

the HOME LOAN
that makes HOME OWNERSHIP AS EASY AS PAYING RENT

It's as simple as it is sound, too! And besides, there's no worry, no unexpected costs later. A long term to repay in rent-like payments makes this plan ideal for home refinancing, buying, building, or modernizing. Ask for full details, then start on the road to complete home ownership.

An interesting study in posture as shown in the Camp Motion Picture. While both figures are equally proportioned, lack of proper support has caused one figure to slump, presenting an awkward, ungainly appearance.

NEWPORT ASSURED FOR SCOUT BASE

Committee Named To Plan Campaign

NEWPORT-BALBOA. — Newport Harbor soon will have an established base for Sea Scouts of Southern California, with land donated by the City of Newport Beach. Mayor Harry H. Williamson announced today.

Valuable waterfront property on the bay is available for Sea Scout use as soon as the property can be improved by Scout officials, Mayor Williamson said today. The city, he added, will aid in improving the property so that Scouts from the southern section of the state may quarter their ships here and engage in training activities.

Dr. Gordon M. Grundy, chairman of the Newport Harbor Scout committee, at the request of Mayor Williamson has appointed a special committee on which are J. D. Watkins, J. A. Siegel, Thomas E. Bouckey, Mayor Williamson and Harry W. Turner. The committee will study the property and in order to secure a plan by which the base can be maintained and equipment made available to all Southern California Sea Scouts. The area offered lies between deep water and State Highway 101.

According to Mayor Williamson, in addition to helping on plans for a Scout base Newport Beach is getting ready to entertain approximately 1000 Sea Scouts from southern states for three days in November. A land-slip is being built at the municipal campground for use as headquarters when 1000 Sea Scouts attend the "rendezvous."

Special Civic Committee To Plan Newport's Future

NEWPORT-BALBOA. — Civic betterment is the aim of a group of special committees appointed by Paul A. Palmer, chairman of the civic division of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce. For this study the city has been divided into 11 districts with a committee to consider the requirements of each.

Coordination of all ideas and suggestions into one concise yet comprehensive plan is another feature of Palmer's plan.

With a frontage of about seven miles along the ocean, the extensive bay area, as well as adjacent mesas, all within the city limits, the problem of civic development requires very careful consideration, Palmer said today. No section should be developed at the expense of another and little attention should be given to temporary needs when development of a permanent and beneficial basis can be secured at slightly more effort and expense, according to Palmer.

Heading the 11 districts which are not necessarily equal in area but are as near as possible units in needs and interests are Ralph P. Maskey, chairman, West Newport area; Gordon B. Findlay, Newport Heights; Hubbard Howe, Industrial; C. H. Dennison, Newport; Dr. G. M. Grundy, El Bazo area; Ben Griffith, Lido Isle; Louis W. Briggs, East Newport; J. P. Greeley, Balboa business section; C. Harold Hopkins, Peninsula section; J. A. Beek, Balboa Island; and Claude A. Pullen, Corona Del Mar.

Chairmen of each group will meet at noon tomorrow at the Bay Front cafe to discuss the plan and compare notes. Palmer will preside.

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. ROBB

Four hundred fifty applauding Townsends welcomed Field Representative Joseph Warneck from the Chicago headquarters in the Townsend mass meeting held Saturday evening in Santa Ana Townsend hall.

The speaker brought a thought provoking message and delivered it in a strikingly dramatic manner which evoked round after round of applause and cheering from his audience.

The speaker began by drawing a picture of the industrial and agricultural production advances which have been undertaken and achieved by the American nation. He said "the problem of production we have solved which brings to us the problem of distribution which is organized to solve." Producing wealth he pointed out was no longer a problem but the getting it to the people was another thing. In this connection he illustrated the workings of the Townsend plan transaction tax combined with its annuity allotments as having the capability of distributing wealth produced in a fair and equitable manner. This the speaker said was America's greatest problem and one upon which hinged the future welfare of its citizens economically.

He told of the temporary prosperity which resulted from the shot in the arm type of money circulation which came from the two billion dollars given the soldier boys as bonus money. There eventually, he said, according to reliable estimates more than nine billion dollars of business before the bonus money had run its course. This he pointed out would be duplicated over and over again with the Townsend plan in effect when more than a billion would likely be released through old age annuities with monthly regularity. Depressions with the Townsend plan a law would be as impossible as it is now impossible to avoid them, he said.

Taking a shot at the administration the speaker said, "Let's give the administration credit for having given us a hypodermic injection which was temporarily needed but which is not proving very satisfactory as a steady diet. 'It's time,' he said, 'we had something worthwhile.'"

Turning his guns on the enemies of the Townsend plan he said, "Wall street talks a lot about communism but they don't fear it like they do the Townsends. They know the army and the navy can take care of communism when the proper time comes, but with Townsends it's a different matter and O how they fear it."

He described the three onslaughts which have been made on Dr. Townsend and his organization as really not being directed at him but instead with the purpose of destroying his movement. He added, in order to accomplish this they knew they must first destroy the doctor's popularity. After having disposed of the doctor it would be easy to wreck and ruin the Townsend plan movement, which he said was the real purpose of those who in the background direct the General Welfare Federation organization movement. This he said would be frustrated because the Townsend plan movement has now been placed on a more firm foundation than ever before.

District Manager J. H. Walsh introduced the speaker, Gen. Henderson accompanied by Miss Eula Walsh directed community singing. Dr. U. G. Littell commented on a letter appearing in The Journal's Mailbag recently which was antagonistic to Townsends. A. M. Mapes boosted for attendance at the Los Angeles Townsend constitution celebration picnic being held tomorrow.

The Garden Grove club is having a pot-luck dinner at 6:30 this evening in the American Legion hall according to Mrs. Smith secretary. At 7:30 following the dinner Paul H. Gardner of Los Angeles will address the Townsend meeting over which J. V. Miller, president will preside. The public is welcome.

Compressed into a few words here are meetings of importance tonight. In Santa Ana Townsend hall at 509 West Fourth street, Club 2 will have Ralph D. Horton as speaker. John Jennings of Los Angeles at Yorba Linda club in the Methodist church basement. Walter R. Robb speaks at Orange Club No. 1 in Townsend club building 149 South Glassell street. Tuscan club meets in old Methodist church building in a business meeting as La Habra Club No. 1 will likewise do in the Masonic hall on Central avenue.

'Reality' Topic Of Science Lesson

The Psalmist's words, "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven," were the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Reality" on Sunday in all Christian Science Churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Among the Scriptural citations in the Lesson-Sermon were these verses from Paul's epistle to the Ephesians: "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; . . . In whom ye also are built together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Of Whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named . . .

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Man and his Maker are correlated in divine Science, and real consciousness is cognizant only of the things of God."

S. B. In Last Stand Tonight vs. Anaheim

PONIES PLAY ON HOME DIAMOND

McDonnell Aims for Four Straight Over Fading Inlanders

With their backs to the wall, San Bernardino's Ponies will make their last stand tonight on their home diamond against the invasion of Anaheim's marauding Valencians who have to date shown no mercy in their dealing with the inland nine's hope for the National softball league title.

After staving off a last inning rally last Friday night, the favored Anaheim nine today brought down the pressure on their opponents who must now win in succession four games—an almost impossible feat.

It will be a toss-up between the two clubs if Lyle Morse is sent to the mound but Manager Clair (String) McDonnell may decide to waste no time in clinching the flag and call upon himself to do the hurrying.

On the other side of the fence, Manager Venn Botts has Bobby Fowler to pitch against the Valencians but will keep himself in readiness to check any uprisings if the Ponies ever get ahead.

If the Valencians can make it four straight for the title it will be the first time for several years that a nightball club has walked off with the series in such short order.

RECHECK TIMES IN RACE

SAN PEDRO. (P)—Handicappers rechecked today the elapsed times of yachts in the 90-mile windjammer race around Santa Barbara island, apparently won by the 10-meter sloper Branta last night.

Skipped by Staff Com. Donald Ayers of the California Yacht club, the Branta made a near record passage of 20 hours 10 minutes in a stiff breeze.

John Hurdall's sloop Escapade, John Swigart's Tamalmar and Donald Douglas, Jr.'s Altamar finished behind the Branta in that order.

Dorade, of San Francisco, apparently placed ninth.

ZEKE BONURA and VERNON KENNEDY, White Sox — Bonura's single with bases loaded in seventh beat Browns 4-3 in opener; Kennedy pitched four hits in 4-1 nightcap win.

SAINTS PREP FOR L. B.

Their old rivals, Long Beach, waiting for them this Friday afternoon, Santa Ana high school Saints bunched today to serious drilling today to see what they can do about the trouble which popped up in the Whittier fracas last week.

No changes are being contemplated in the starting lineup by Coach Bill Foote. The team's forward wall held their own against the Cards but costly fumbles troubled the Saints.

SPORT SLANTS

By TOM (PAP) PAPROCKI

You may lead a Giant fan into Yankee Stadium, but you can't make him cheer for the Yankees.

This is amply borne out by an incident in the bleachers in Yankee Stadium. The Yankees were entertaining the Cleveland Indians while the Giants were attending to a bit of business on the western circuit.

A dusky son of Harlem, who had been drawn into the stadium by his fondness for the national pastime, was rooting lustily for the downfall of the Yankees at the hands of Cleveland's Bob Feller.

As Feller set down the Yankee sluggers inning after inning, his spirit mounted higher and higher. When the urge to cheer got the better of him, he directed his remarks to Mancuso, Ott, Leibert, Bartell and other members of the distant Giant team.

So great was his disdain for the Yankees that he refused to so much as mention their names. A fellow beacher, standing this about as long as he could, leaned over and asked the gentleman from Harlem if, by chance, he wasn't in the wrong ballpark.

"Ah, so is," replied the loyal Giant rooster. "But when them Giants is on the road Ah always comes up here to ride these Yankees. Boy, what a trimming mah Giants is going to give them when they meet again in the world series."

There was no let-up in his enthusiastic "riding" of the American leaguers. Occasionally, he took time out to rush down to a point where he could see what the scoreboard had to show in the way of progress the Giants were making at the expense of the Pirates. Luckily, the news was all good and he returned to his task of "riding" the Yankees with renewed vigor.

When the Cleveland Indians led the Yankees 4-0 going into the last half of the eighth inning he was vehemently exhorting Bob Feller to humble the proud world champions with a shut-out.

And then it happened. Crossett bounced a single to left. Rolfe single. Di Maggio walked, filling the bases. Gehrig walked and forced in Crossett. Rolfe scored and Di Maggio took third on a wild pitch. Dickey doubled, scoring Di Maggio and Gehrig, that was the signal for Feller's departure.

With that the loyal Giant fan got up and walked out. "Ah came in with Mr. Feller and Ah goes out with Feller," was his parting shot.

Bees May Knock Over Giants

By SID FEDER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

To all intents and purposes, the Giants have the National league pennant tucked away in their vest pocket, but there's still the bare chance that those bad Bees from Boston will knock them over the head and take the title away from them.

In fact, the last hope for the Cubs, who now trail Bill Terry's Terriers by four games, lies in the ability of the baffling Bees to continue their jinx over the galloping Giants in two doubleheaders at the Polo Grounds today and tomorrow.

It will take sweep of the four-game set, or close to it, to keep the Giants away from successful defense of their crown through this last week of the season. And even that may not do it, unless the Cubs can knock off the Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds in their seven remaining games.

As matters now stand, any combination of six-six wins for the Giants, six losses for the Cubs, or a sum making up that total, clinches the pennant for the New Yorkers. They have 11 games to play, to the Cubs' seven. At the moment, here's the picture (and it's anything but a pretty one for Chicago):

Club	W.	L.	G.	Eh.	To Play
Giants	89	54			11
Cubs	87	60	4		7

It's strictly up to the Bees now. They've already whipped the Giants 10 times in 18 starts this year. After they leave the Polo Grounds, the Giants run out their schedule against the soft touches, the Phillies and Brooklyn Dodgers, who are no longer troublemakers.

The Dodgers, once the Giants' best-loved enemies, showed how easy they were over the week-end by losing a two-game series to the New Yorkers. After bowing on Saturday, they put up a game enough fight yesterday, until Lou Chiozza, a reformed Philly, and newest "white-haired boy" of the Terry troupe, walloped a homer in the ninth inning to break up the game with a 4-3 Giant win. Cliff Melton, the southpaw rookie with the rubber arm, saved the day with a 1½-inning hitless relief trick.

Meantime, the Cubs managed only an even break in their doubleheader with the Cardinals. Bill Lee folded in the ninth inning and the Cards took the opener, 6-5 with a four-run ninth inning spurge. A six-run spree in the sixth inning brought an 8-5 Cub victory in the nightcap.

COAST TITLE AT STAKE IN FINALS

Padres and Beavers Open Seven-Game Series Tomorrow

SAN DIEGO. (P)—The 1937 championship of the Pacific Coast baseball league and $5000 in prize money will be at stake when the Portland Beavers and San Diego Padres open a seven game title series Tuesday.

Showing unexpected hitting strength the Padres and Beavers went into the finals by virtue of four straight victories each. The Padres measured the first place Sacramento outfit and the Portland crew knocked San Francisco out of the competition.

Portland, 1936 champions, just barely managed to get into the playoff series by losing out Los Angeles for fourth place. San Diego finished the scheduled season in third place behind San Francisco.

Winner of this week's series gets the pennant and $3000 and $2000 goes to the second team.

BEGIN NET PLAY AT BERKELEY

Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany; J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, San Francisco; and Helen Hull Jacobs of Berkeley will be seen in action tomorrow. All of them have been participating in the Pacific Southwest tournament at Los Angeles.

Miss Jacobs informed tournament officials she would not play in the women's singles. She will appear only in the women's doubles with Miss Dorothy Workman of Pasadena, Cal.

Beall Bucks Over for First Touchdown; Payoff Tally Comes in Fourth Quarter

Santa Ana Junior college's victory special brought home the bacon this morning after spending a very profitable trip to Palo Alto where the powerful Stanford frosh eleven was scalped, 12-7, Saturday noon. But it wasn't just an ordinary win for the junior collegian footballers. The conquest marked the second major California yearling team to fall within a year before the Red and Black.

Last year it was the U. C. L. A. first-year team which succumbed before the all-potent Dons, and Saturday's win brought the Dons' winning streak to 12 straight games including last year's 10 victories.

Here was the payoff scene: Culminating a 37-yard march in Stanford territory the Dons had possession of the ball on the seven-yard stripe. With fourth down and goal to go, a pass play was called.

McCartier FIRES PASS
Fading back to his 20, Oliver McCartier saw the streaking figure of Co-Capt. Ed Stanley in coffin corner and let loose a low throw which the latter scooped up on his shoestrings and fell over into pay territory.

Out-playing the Palo Alto future grid greats three-fourths of the way, the Dons were not however able to build up a greater score because of several intercepted passes. Most of the playing was done in Stanford territory until the third quarter march which netted the Papooses their lone score.

CRAWFORD INTERCEPTS PASS
Joe Crawford intercepted a stray pass on the Santa Ana 37 yard line early in the second stanza. With any hesitation Blas Mercurio fired a pass to Erwin Youel who was brought down on the Stanford 43. Again the Dons took to the air with MacBeall throwing to Ted DeVelbiss who speared the toss on the 31 for another first down but the rally was was cut short by an intercepted pass on the 18.

The entire Don forward wall crashed through on the next play blocking the kick with Dick Tauber recovering the ball on the 21-yard stripe.

Completing where they left off and with five minutes left in the quarter Mercurio passed to Del Velbiss again who lateraled to Joe Crawford who rambled to the four before the Stanford safety overtook him.

After one buck at the line, Beall found a hole over right guard and drove the remaining way to the score. An attempted running conversion failed to add the extra point.

Mid-way in the third Kerman, a guard, speared a Don pass for the Red on the Santa Ana 38 after the Red and Black had previously intercepted one of the Papooses' throws. Several ground plays and a pass, however, brought the ball down within scoring territory.

For a while it looked as if the Dons might stand off the frosh attack. It took Norman Standlee four downs before he could crash over from the one-yard line. It was a gallant stand by the Don forward wall, converted place kick set the Dons behind, 7-6, and it appeared to be an almost hopeless task to overcome until the Stanford team fumbled on their own 38 in the waning minutes.

McCartier makes 10
McCartier made it a first down on a 10-yard line. Another trip through the line netted nine more and a penalty against the frosh put them within scoring distance.

With McCartier and Les McLennan taking cracks at the line the ball advanced to the seven from which point the Dons' signal caller ordered the pass to Stanley who was all by himself in the coffin corner.

It was all-Santa Ana throughout the contest. Several times the Dons hit into Stanford ground but were repulsed.

ROQUET STANDOUT
"Rusty" Roquet was the standout man on the forward wall. Time and again his power at right tackle smeared Stanford plays. Dick Tauber and Joe Crawford at guards played bangup ball while Danny Boyd who started at center backed up the line to perfection.

Yuel and DeVelbiss made the Stanford backs look sick as they caught passes in the flats for long gains. Once again the Dons used the down-field lateral and it worked for good yardage.

Back into the bowl this afternoon.

BUDGE IN NET TOURNAY

LOS ANGELES. (P)—J. Donald Budge and Alice Marble, fresh from their singles victories in the Pacific Southwest tournament here, turned to San Francisco today with a host of other players to renew the tennis wars in the Pacific coast championships.

Miss Marble, driving brilliantly to a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Cracy Wheeler yesterday, avenged the defeat she suffered at the hands of the Santa Monica girl here a year ago. A capacity crowd of 4000 persons, many of them movie notables, witnessed the finals.

Budge had captured the men's singles title Saturday by beating his German rival, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Two Englishmen, Charles Hare and George Patrick Hughes, downed Francis X. Shields of Hollywood and Jacques Brugnon, France, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, to win the men's doubles championship.

The women's doubles title went to Dorothy Workman, Pasadena, and Dorothy Bundy, Santa Monica, who defeated Carol Babcock, Los Angeles, and Mrs. John Van Ryn, Austin, Texas, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of Berkeley flashed some of her old form as United States singles champion, in teaming with Von Cramm to defeat Budge and Mrs. Van Ryn, 6-1, 6-4, in the mixed doubles.

CITRUS GROWERS 'ARM' FOR WAR ON FROST

HUGE SUPPLY OF FUEL TO
BE STOCKEDGrowers 'Overhauling'
Cold Detectors

With winter coming on, citrus growers and weather men started making preparations today for the cold weather. Thermometers used by growers will be checked for accuracy, and extra precautions are being taken to be sure of an ample supply of fuel for orchard heaters.

Floyd D. Young, meteorologist with the U. S. Weather bureau, announced today that thermometer testing and servicing by the weather bureau fruit-frost service will begin in this county on Oct. 12. Thermometers from this district will be taken to Pomona and tested at the Reservoir street packing house.

Thermometer testing and servicing will require considerable time and thermometers will not be ready to return to growers for a week or more after they are delivered. Packing house managers will be expected to bring the thermometers to Pomona for testing, and to call for them when they have been serviced.

Young asked growers and packing house managers to use every possible precaution to see that every thermometer is tagged with the owner's name and the packing house through which he ships. He pointed out that there are more than 15,000 thermometers in service. Thermometers must be delivered to packing houses not later than Oct. 11.

The fruit-frost service is planning to make a thorough survey of orchard heating next winter, beginning in November. Information sought will concern the number of acres of various citrus crops each grower owns, the location of his grove, number of heaters in use, capacity of oil storage tanks, etc.

The figures to be obtained will show definitely which districts now have ample fuel storage facilities and which still remain in grave danger of fuel shortage when the next general freeze comes along. In the freezes of last January, many growers ran short of fuel.

Anxious Mother Flees Shanghai's Terrors

The balance scales of war weighed the fortune of this Chinese mother and her child and spared them from the death which claimed thousands less fortunate. With her home gone, her husband missing, she put her worldly goods in a bag, her baby in a basket and fled war-torn Shanghai and its streets of sorrow.

U.S. Coast Defense Too Weak
To Resist Invasion

(Editor's Note: This is the second and concluding installment of an article by General Johnson Hagood which points out the strategic necessity of withdrawal from Asia and also outlines practical means of making the Pacific coast safe from any possible enemy.)

By GEN. JOHNSON HAGOOD
The army general staff was created in 1903 to make plans for war and it has been making plans for war ever since. It has plans of some kind for making war against every nation on earth. This is only on the side of prudence and is what the general staff of every other army is doing.

But our general staff is imbued with the foreign idea—we got it first from the Germans—that offensive is the best defense. And for this reason we are no longer willing to sit behind a Chinese wall and say KEEP OUT.

IN DECEAL

We want to be "up-and-at-em." We have permitted our seacoast fortifications—at one time the best in the world—to go into a state of decay. And have developed an aggressive mobile army prepared on paper to go out as a huge expeditionary force, or to successfully combat with any foreign foe that might secure a footing within the continental limits of the United States.

We base all our grand maneuvers upon the theory that our navy and our seacoast defense have been destroyed. But we do nothing to see that our forts are made strong enough to hold out.

FORTIFICATIONS OLD

The fortifications of the Pacific coast with the exception of Los Angeles were laid out under a plan devised by the Endicott board in 1886. The writer was sent out from Washington, D. C., in 1907 to make some final suggestions about range-finders and searchlights.

No material improvements have been made since that time. We have subsequently installed a few guns here and there that will shoot further than the old guns, but they can't hit anything because we have no well developed system of using airplanes or anything else to locate the targets with sufficient accuracy to destroy them with the ammunition available for that purpose.

The airplanes are not interested in hanging around to spot targets for the seacoast forts. They have got their minds on more active operations with the huge mobile army or on going out upon independent bombing expeditions of their own.

And so also whatever we have

FAIR TO HONOR
CLUB GROUPS

Members of all Southern California service clubs will be honored at tomorrow's session of the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona.

The program will include musical concerts in the agricultural building at 11 a. m., 3 p. m., 4:30 p. m. and 8 p. m., grandstand entertainment featuring Gus Arnheim at 1 and 7 p. m., horse races at 1:30 p. m., harness racing at 8 p. m., and a Pomona and Arrowhead council Boy Scout camporee at 5 p. m.

got in the way of anti-aircraft guns—and we have almost nothing—likes to follow around with the big circus.

Puget sound is the world's greatest natural harbor. It is not difficult to defend. Under the old plan there were three forts, Worden, Flagler and Casey, closing the channel across from Port Townsend to Whidby island. Subsequent suggestions were made for the defense of Deception pass, Bellingham bay and Gray's Harbor. But nothing has been done about any new forts and the old forts have been abandoned or allowed to become obsolete.

HAS NO PROTECTION
The naval station at Bremerton is without any protection from the army.

It is the same at San Francisco. The newspapers say that provision has been made by which if an enemy should destroy the new bridge across the Golden Gate it will sink to the bottom and will not obstruct the channel. Outside of this nothing worthy of note has been done in the past 20 years. The same old obsolete guns line both sides of the entrance. The only thing is that there are not so many of them.

The naval station at Mare Island is protected only by Almighty God.

All of our seacoast fortifications should be completely reconstructed and brought up to the standard of the navy.

URGENT NEEDS

They should have high-power guns with ample protection from overhead fire; rangefinders that can reach out to the range of the guns; searchlights or other suitable devices of illuminating the targets at night; submarine mines; submarine boats available for cooperation with the forts; airplanes; anti-aircraft guns; bomb-proof and gas-proof shelter for the protection of personnel, food supplies and ammunition; suitable boats and lighters for harbor transportation.

They should have a well trained crew of key men, with an organization ready to go into instant action.

None of this they now have. The military policy of the United States is based upon two conflicting theories. The one is that we shall never be attacked and the other is that we must be prepared to rapidly mobilize all of our resources, including soldiers, capital and industry.

Under the first theory we have abandoned our sea-coast forts. Under the second theory we are developing our so-called Four Army plan.

DEFENSE STRONGER

In every modern war—from the Boer war in Africa to the Chinese war in Shanghai—it has been shown that defense is stronger than offense. And that notwithstanding the great offensive weapons, such as tanks, armored cars, heavy artillery and gas, inadequately trained troops, with inadequate equipment and inferior weapons can stand off well trained regulars with modern arms.

When we consider the difficulty of transporting a great modern army with its ponderous equipment across the seas—the impossibility of doing so without well protected harbors and well organized docks and wharves—we can appreciate this problem from the American standpoint.

NO PLAN READY

The constitution provides for the defense of this country by means of militia which with limited exceptions consists of all able-bodied men between certain ages. Part of this militia has been splendidly organized into a federalized national guard. We have a 100,000 reserve officers, almost all of whom are World war veterans or graduates of our military schools.

We have shoulder rifles, machine guns and artillery. But we have no plan under which the militia can be called out to furnish the enlisted men of our reserve divisions.

We have no text books from which they or any other new troops could learn their elementary war time duties—it is all handed down by word of mouth—and we have no target ranges where they could be taught to shoot.

These are the problems that confront America. We are spending too much on our national defense and we are not getting anywhere with it.

I Just Found Out!

By MILLARD BROWNE

Never a birth, never a death, but rarely a dull moment. That's the record claimed for the personnel of Santa Ana's taxi business.

Both births and deaths have nearly happened right in their own back seats for some local cabbies, but so far they've always missed—after an occasional run for it.

Closest race with the stork happened a couple of years ago to Keith "Hot" Gibson, who comments: "The lady had a baby just three minutes after I got her to the hospital. Sure had to step to make it."

Death missed Warren Smothers' taxi by about the same amount of time. A heartbroken young girl once climbed into his car, went to a flower shop to get a bouquet for her sweetheart who had just been killed. Smothers took her on to the funeral home, waited outside for a few minutes, and an attendant presently informed him his passenger had just committed suicide.

A hectic business, this taxi-driving. It's the thrills and uncertainty that keep most drivers in the game.

The cabman's perpetual dream: A run to New York or someplace—with the meter ticking all the way.

Closest things to realization of the dream among Santa Ana drivers have been trips to San Diego, March Field, Hemet, Santa Barbara and back is the longest trip on record, but the customer was broke and got by with a puny $10 fare.

Going from sublime to ridiculous, the Santa Ana cabbies' shortest run happened a few days ago. A party of six ordered a cab for a two-block convey from one downtown cocktail bar to another. The fee was 60 cents.

Since taxi business started perking up in 1928, Santa Ana drivers have traveled an estimated 6,288,000 miles, and have carried three and a half million customers.

Each of 10 cabs currently operating in the city averages 4000 miles a month in the summer, 6000 in the rainy season. Business was better in 1929 when 17 cabs batted around at a 6000-mile clip every month.

Most of the taxi business comes from steady customers. Some ride four times a day, regular as clock-work, Santa Ana drivers report.

The biggest single fee—$147 for a three-day cruise—was paid by the best customer in local taxi history. He was a wealthy Mexican, and quite a drinker. "Used to get drunk and cruise around for two or three days," one driver said. "We counted on him for about $400 a month."

Drunks are a boon to the cab business. "On Saturday nights, the riders are all drunk," was one extravagant claim.

That's when all the fights occur. A drunk will cruise, get mad, refuse to pay and refuse to get out. Muscular drivers, consequently, are preferred on the night run.

SEA GIVES UP
MYSTERY CAN
OF FILMSSunset Beach Woman
Finds Odd Record

Mystery today surrounded discovery of a sealed can of undeveloped photographic film at Sunset Beach. Discovered by Mrs. Helen May, the can was found after it had washed ashore in front of the home of Charles H. Owen at 735 Ocean Front, Sunset Beach.

It is believed that the film may have been lost by some explorer, or washed loose from the wreckage of an airplane. It contained film 8x10 inches, and is the same kind used by explorers and flyers.

The only clew is an imprint on the package, after the sealed can was opened, which said "Develop before August, 1935." Since film is stamped a year ahead of time, this indicates that the can has been in the water for probably five years.

The film may have drifted with the currents for thousands of miles, but nobody can tell where it came from.

There was nothing on the film. Either it had not been exposed or it is so old the image has faded completely.

Nuptials Are Performed Saturday

Baskets of delicate fern and great shaggy white chrysanthemums, above which rose slender white tapers in tall candelabra decorated the First Baptist church Saturday evening for wedding rites of Miss Dorothy Louise Robinson, daughter of the A. M. Robinsons of Tustin, and Arthur Elliott Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrington of Simi. Mrs. Perry Grout had arranged the beautiful setting in which the Rev. Harry Evan Owings officiated.

Carrying out the traditional decoration scheme of purest white offset by touches of pastel were members of the bridal party. Miss Robinson wore a severely simple frock of white satin with halo cap and veil on which were real orange blossoms. A strand of pearls was the gift of the groom, and her flowers were white roses and bouvardia.

Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Robinson, was maid of honor in a gown of blue lace, while bridesmaids were Miss Betty Chadsey of Beaumont and Miss Lois Kiser of Tustin, dressed in similarly styled peach and turquoise chiffons, with matching sheaves of flowers.

Ross Harrington attended his brother as best man, while ushers were Robert Harrington and Elmer Chadsey.

Following the impressive ceremony, which was augmented by organ music played by Merrill Jensen of Redlands and vocal solos by Miss Willie Baer of Ranome, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Robinson received wedding guests at their Tustin home.

Here lovely pink pompon dahlias sent by Mrs. Alva Rittner and Mrs. William Hickman, close friends of the family, were used to decorate the home where wedding refreshments were served and the many beautiful gifts received were on display.

The bride and groom left Sunday for Boston, where the latter will continue his studies at the School of Theology, Boston university. Both attended the University of Redlands, where Mrs. Harrington was affiliated with Beta Lambda Mu sorority, and he was a member of Chi Sigma Chi. Previous to that she had attended Tustin Union High school and he had been graduated from Simi High school.

The bride has been widely feted since her engagement announcement earlier in the summer. Among those hosting delightful affairs were Lois Kiser and Miss Bonnie Kiser, Miss Lila Hodge and Mrs. Elizabeth Hodge, and her Redlands sorority sisters.

The entire group of attendants for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Robinson and Arthur Harrington were entertained by the bride and groom-to-be at a luncheon in Daniger's Saturday noon.

A table decorated in bridal white was centered with a big bowl of white chrysanthemums flanked by tall white tapers. The placecards, carried out the wedding motif, and daintily-tied packages were beside each plate.

Guests of the engaged couple were the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Evan Owings, Miss Betty Chadsey, Miss Wilma Baer, Miss Lois Kiser, Miss Elizabeth Robinson, Ross Harrington, Robert Harrington, Elmer Chadsey, and Merrill Jensen.

TRIO RETURN FROM EUROPEAN TRIP

Miss Effie Douglas and her two traveling companions, Miss Hazel Cubbon and Miss Barbara Ware, arrived at their homes Saturday evening following a three and one-half month trip through Europe.

Before leaving Ireland on their return home, one of the last outings of the trio was a trip to Blarney Castle near Cork where the whole party climbed the circular stairs to see the famous Blarney stone. Miss Cubbon and Miss Ware kissed the stone.

The travelers reached Montreal on the S. S. Duchess of Athol on Sept. 18, took the Canadian Pacific across the continent, stopping at Lake Louise. In Seattle, Miss Douglas enjoyed a short visit with her brother, Clarence, and was met by another brother, Gene Douglas of Laguna Beach, in Los Angeles.

RUTANS ARE HOSTS TO FOUR TABLES

The first of several similar affairs planned, the party's attendance list was comprised of 16 intimate friends of the Rutans.

Following dinner, served at a table where crystal and silver were offset by golden gladioli and dahlias, contract was enjoyed, with table prizes going to Mrs. George Briggs, Mrs. R. C. Hollis, R. C. Hollis, and C. V. Davis.

CHIC COSTUMES FOR THREE CHARMING COEDS

You can take a few fashion tips from these fall costumes and their accessories. The first combines a wine-brown town suit with a new box swagger coat of the same color plaid in chateau green. A little gold bird holds the scarf. The feathered hat is dark green felt.

Narrow bands of black Persian lamb trim the black duvetyne coat in the center, flared and fitted to the new slender diaphragm.

Seventy-five guests were present at the card party given by the Ernest L. Kellogg auxiliary, V. F. W., Friday evening in K. P. hall.

Poets' Corner

California Verse Reprints With Comments By MINA SHAFFER

Benoin Jacques Stanley has a book of poems to her credit called "Men of Ormalu" . . . she has spent the last 12 years in New Mexico, Arizona, and Oklahoma studying the legends and customs of the Indians. . . . She is now living in California.

One of the things we read is . . . an Indian when condemned to die by his tribe, is not held in prison, but is left to come himself to his execution, which he does, riding hard by day and night, lest he be too late.

HUNTING-SONG (Navajo)

The deer to my singing
From the Black mountain
Leaps the high summit
Down the trail coming . . .
The deer to my singing
Through the tall blossoms,
Through the tall blossoms,
Stamping and turning
Over the desert . . .
Luck in the chase is Quarry forever.

ADVANCEMENT

We seized their land for a city square,
The opal prairie and valley fair.
The long, blue mountains and woodland hush

Do not belong to a noonday rush.
Now humble, forlorn, the redmen dwell
In wickiups by a temple bell,
And Indians dance in rhythmic rows
Hatted like Spaniards, with ragged clothes.

Civilization has come and won
The passive heart of a native son.
Civilization has come and gone,
Dollar for dollar, and pawn for pawn.
In civic schools the Redskins read
Of treachery, crime, and lust, and greed.
But, out in the wind, an eagle feather
Points to the clouds and the thunder-weather.

Mary Stoddard Wife Nags About Other Things When Trouble Is Lack of Cleanliness

An issue is never cleared by "beating around the bush" about it. Frankness is an admirable quality, and one too often missing in the modern regime. If the wife who writes the following letter could but realize that she is probably hurting her husband's feelings much more deeply by the tactics she uses than she would be to frank and kindly about this one "fault" she would accomplish much better results.

Dear Miss Stoddard: I've just had a terrible quarrel with my husband and I hope I'll feel better after writing my troubles to you. The cause of this quarrel is uncleanliness, and as I think back over our three years of married life, I believe this has indirectly been the cause of most of our quarrels.

When my husband comes to the dinner table without washing his hands or face, it makes me boil, and instead of telling him about it, I have always been afraid of hurting his feelings. I will nag about something that usually isn't important and before I know it, we will be quarreling.

It is true that his work is very dirty, but I feel this is more the reason why he should take a daily bath, but he says, "What's the use, I will be just as dirty tomorrow night?"

Sometimes I feel like I would leave him if it wasn't for our two darling babies. I feel like if he cared for me he'd keep himself clean as he knows that this is important to me. At times I've thought I'd let myself go to see how he'd like it, but to me a daily bath is like brushing one's teeth.

I will certainly appreciate any advice you can give me on this subject, also maybe some of your readers have had the same problem and have solved it sensibly. In fairness to my husband I want to add that this is his only fault. Sincerely, "DISGUSTED."

Did you know, "Disgusted" that "men are little boys grown tall?"

Did you know that when they leave the home roof where mother or big sis kept watch over them, they need that same kindly, guiding hand in the person of a wife, to carry on the supervising of personal appearance?

Have you tried treating your husband sort of like you would your two babies in this respect?

For instance, when he comes home greet him with a great big smile and tell him you have a nice surprise for him. Have the bath water all drawn, at just the right temperature, help him to remove his shoes and have his slippers and bath robe handy and see if he doesn't respond to your wishes under this motherly influence. Or, if you think this is too much right at the start, have a good sized wash cloth handy and just wipe his face and hands in a joking manner, saying something like "Now all of my family is cleaned up for dinner."

If you just must come out with a certain lecture about this, for goodness sake do it frankly and don't nag about something else, because that would leave any intelligent human being "all at sea."

If our readers have helpful suggestions, I'll gladly hand them on to you via our column if they will send them in.

Book Review of the Week

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of weekly book reviews of current publications which will appear each Monday in The Journal. Review of "Recapture the Moon" by Sylvia Thompson (Courtesy Treasure Isle Gift Shop, 506 North Main)

By MOLLY HARVEY
Since Emily Post has raised the embargo on certain slang words, I can say with a clear conscience that "Recapture the Moon" is a perfectly lovely book. The characters are weak, lazy, conceited, selfish and utterly boring. The situation is the thousand-and-first rehash of the post-war generation whom everyone thankfully forgot when Hemingway turned his talents to bull fighting, and deep sea fishing. The style is choppy, disconnected, nerve-racking. People come, exchange a few banalities and go. The scene shifts every two or three pages, blacking out like a poor movie. You will need a notebook and pencil if you wish to keep track of the movements of any one individual. As Sylvia Thompson has been a best-seller writer since her really fine novel, "Hounds of Spring," there undoubtedly will be devoted followers who will want to read her latest book. Don't say I didn't warn you.

Blanca, who of the many female persons is perhaps the heroine, has the makings of a very fine woman. At 18 she married romantically a boy only a year older than herself, a week later tearfully sends him to the front. It is no surprise that he is killed in action. Numb from the shock, Blanca retreats to the English Boursyde to await the birth of their son, Toby, spends the ten most worthwhile years of her life in what she later considers a mental stupor, fitting him for public school.

In the meantime her childhood companions are busy wrecking their lives. Her cousin Peter, who might have been a great statesman dies from tuberculosis, the result of smoking opium. Another cousin, Charman, pursues a half-baked musician to America, is married, disillusioned, remarried, disillusioned, etc.

Louis, a novelist of the sensational type, who sleeps between black sheets, sports a green orchid in his button hole. Louis is the center of a group who call themselves the "Galere." For years, (the story ends in 1936) the Galere flits from London to Paris to New York to Vienna seeking what they call happiness and indulging in a series of progressive affairs with one another. At a time when their contemporaries have gotten themselves in hand and found a useful niche in the business of the world, Louis and his friends are seeking an outlet for their boredom and restlessness in the most sophisticated diversions.

The Galere is well established when Blanca, her son now away at school, decides she has been missing the full life. She feels the spontaneous, irresponsible existence of Louis and his friends is what she needs. It does not take her long to adopt their extravagant dress, their asinine chatter, their disregard for true values. After 18 years of exposure she and Louis realize that what they have really been seeking is each other.

If written as a piece of satire, "Recapture the Moon" might have had some point. But you feel that Miss Thompson is deadly serious, and is just too pleased that dear Louis and dearer Blanca have finally found the blue bird of happiness. It is just too, too sweet, and just too, too hard for the reader to swallow.

Formal Rites Unite Local Couple

Quiet dignity characterized the rites yesterday afternoon in the large auditorium of the First Methodist Episcopal church uniting Miss Esther Vogt and Ralph Gordon. Dr. George A. Warner of Riverside, a close friend of the family for many years and former pastor of the local church, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Henry Irving Rasmus, Jr., present pastor of the church.

Large baskets of white asters, huge dahlias, and white delphinium banked the altar of the church, with large palms on either side. Many candelabra cast a flickering light over the scene. Single large dahlias were tied with white satin streamers at each pew.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, S. S. Vogt, made a lovely picture in her white satin gown, cut princess style. A lace yolk in the dress was repeated in the edging around the long veil. She carried a shower bouquet of mystery gardenias and orchids.

Miss Neva Roderick attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a rust satin frock and carried a sheaf of Johanna Hill roses. Four bridesmaids were included in the party, with Miss Vera Beers and Mrs. Halstead McCormack wearing duobonnet satin, while Mrs. George Winter and Miss Margaret Cline wore royal blue. All wore face veils fastened with clusters of gerberas and carried bouquets of the same flowers.

Attending the groom as best man was Leell Slaback. Ushers were Charles Tulane, Minor Whitford, Glenn Gordon and George Winter.

Tiny Lucille Sauerma preceded the bride party down the aisle, daintily attired in green satin. Following her were Jeanne Gordon and Jeanette Sauerma as candle lighters, also wearing green satin. All three wore bandeaus of flowers in their hair.

Halstead McCormack was at the organ, playing "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Annie Laurie," and the Mendelssohn and Lohengrin wedding marches. Don Krueger, baritone, sang "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Because." Edward Burns, cellist, was accompanied by Mrs. Victor Rees in playing "Call Me Thine Own" and "Lieblich Dich."

Following the ceremony, 50 guests were received at the Doris Kathryn Tea shoppe. Mrs. S. S. Vogt, mother of the bride, wearing royal blue velvet with black accessories and a mystery gardenia corsage, and Mrs. Floyd S. Gordon, the groom's mother, in duobonnet velvet with black accessories and a gardenia corsage, greeted the guests.

For her honeymoon trip, the new Mrs. Gordon wore a two-piece black dressmaker suit, with a grey swaggar coat with fox collar. She wore black accessories and an orchid corsage. They will make their home in Santa Ana upon their return from the honeymoon trip.

A green and white color theme was carried out in decorations and refreshments which were served on individual trays. The trio of hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. Viola Gammell, Miss Beryl Bates, and Miss Eleanor McCullough.

Included among the guests from Mrs. Fannie Huntton, Mrs. Edna Emmert, Mrs. Thomas Duncan, Mrs. Mary Stevens, Miss Beverly Jackson, Arthur Williams, Viola Gammell, R. L. Hager, R. E. Chapman, C. R. ## El Centrants Married Here

In the presence of their many Santa Ana friends Johnnie A. Richards and Eugene L. Heiss, jr., of El Centro were married Saturday afternoon at the Santa Ana Wedding chapel by the Rev. Earl C. Bloss.

The bride-groom was a resident of Santa Ana for many years, and was prominent in club activities here, among his affiliations being membership in the Twenty-Third club, the Bachelors, Lions, Alpha Phi Sigma. For the past year he has been manager of the Goodrich store at El Centro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Anderson of El Centro, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Harriet Roberts of Salt Lake City and Eugene L. Heiss of Santa Ana.

The wedding was informal in nature, although very impressive with its background of white delphinium, larkspur, and stock. The bride wore a smart afternoon dress of Huntington green with matching accessories, and a corsage of white roses. Miss Mae Thomas, her attendant, also chose the autumnal shades of brown and green for her outfit. Frank Mason attended the groom.

Later the wedding guests were invited to a reception given by the young couple by Mrs. Roda Ramon, whose home was a bower of pastel flowers. After the cutting of the wedding cake Mr. and Mrs. Heiss left on a fortnight's honeymoon before returning to El Centro.

DIVORCEE'S DAUGHTER

By VIVIAN RADCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1937, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Janice Flagg is the daughter of Oden Flagg, Chicago millionaire, but her mother, divorced from Flagg, has estranged her from him. After her mother's death, she spurns his request that she make her home with him and her sister Ivonne. She refuses to accept money from him, and goes to New York, where she becomes social secretary to Mrs. Lela Greene, a friend of her mother's. Mrs. Greene makes her realize she has been unfair to her father, but she is still determined to make her own way without his aid. She and Mrs. Greene's son, Wyde, fall in love, but Mrs. Greene, who has had financial reverses, insists that Wyde must make a wealthy marriage. They both try to force Janice to make up with her father, and thus save the money of her millions. Finally, in Florida, Mrs. Greene brings about a meeting between Janice and Oden Flagg. Janice refuses to go home with him, but succeeds in making him understand her position. He and Ivonne are on their way to New York.

CHAPTER XIX

THE next morning, when Janice joined the Greens at breakfast, she heard that her father and sister had already gone. She smiled a little wistfully.

"Everything all right between you two?" Mrs. Greene asked, treading where others with finer sensibilities would not have dared venture.

"If you mean, am I going back to my father—no!"

"You little fool—with everything waiting for you!" said Mrs. Greene, exasperated.

"Surely, Janice—" began Wyde.

"Will you excuse me?" Janice pushed aside her almost untouched breakfast, hastily rose, and left the dining room.

Up in her room she paced the floor. It was apparent that she had lost Wyde by refusing to go back to her father.

Did she really love him? If she did, why wasn't she torn with unhappiness? Why wasn't she on that bed, sobbing her heart out because her father Charming had proven mercenary? Oh, but she did love him! There was a part of her now fairly aching for the feel of his arms about her, for his lips to crush hers, for tender words to assure her that nothing would separate them.

A KNOCK. Mrs. Greene entered, regally.

"I've come to talk with you, Janice," she said firmly. "You do not seem to understand that you must take your proper place in the world; that if you are going to marry Wyde, you must not be a working girl."

"You mean, Mrs. Greene, that if you are going to allow Wyde to marry me, I must be the wealthy daughter of Oden Flagg," Janice stated flatly and clearly. "Well, I will not go to my father to demand my share of his money, or marry your son or any other man!"

"That is insulting!"

"No more insulting than your attitude. I am stating in cold facts what you have tried to disguise as a kindly and conciliatory attitude on your part. You don't care whether my father and I are together or not—all you want is to have Wyde marry money. Well, let him marry Corinne—or any other wealthy girl—I don't care!"

"And Wyde sent me to plead with you—to tell you how much he loved you! I'll admit our situation is desperate, but you two young people are in love, and it would be a crime to allow your silly attitude about your father's money to separate you."

"So Wyde had sent her to plead for him! No, Janice could not believe that. Mrs. Greene herself had determined that she could make a final plea better than Wyde's.

"I THINK it over, Janice dear, and I'm sure you will realize that you are being hasty. I'll give you the money to join your father in New York if you don't wish to write to him for some."

"I do not need to write to my father for money—nor to borrow it from you," Janice's chin was high.

"But Wyde loves you—he is foolish about you! I'm afraid he will lose his head, marry you, anyway, and not think of the consequences," pleaded Mrs. Greene.

"You need not fear that I won't marry Wyde. I would not subject my father to the problem of supporting a son-in-law."

Mrs. Greene drew herself up to her full height.

"You shall regret this! You treat me this way after I took you from that miserable rooming house and gave you a position in my home! I never thought Lois Flagg's daughter could be so ungrateful to one who has tried to be so good a friend."

"You mean you did not expect Lois Flagg's daughter to see through your scheming. You did not expect to find that I was more Oden Flagg's daughter and could not have the wool pulled over my eyes."

Janice was on her feet now, blue eyes almost black with anger. Her whole body trembled with rage.

"AFTER such talk, you cannot expect me to keep you on as my secretary!" Frustration was plainly written on Mrs. Greene's florid face.

"I shall leave immediately," Janice replied quickly. "It will not take me long to pack."

"I'll draw a check for your wages."

"Don't bother! I'm sure you need the money more than I do," Janice replied scathingly.

"Just get out of here before I tell you what I think of a woman like you."

Mrs. Greene withdrew with as much dignity as she could muster. Before Janice began to pack, she looked into her purse. Silly! To carry one hundred and fifty dollars around this way, but now she was glad that it was here, at hand. But where should she go? New York would be icy cold, and jobs scarce. Perhaps she could wander through the South, stopping to pick up work where it offered. Yes, that was what she would do. . . .

O'BYRNE-LUCEY RITES READ IN ORANGE

In the new Hollywood fashion, the wedding gown and veil of Miss Lila O'Byrne, Orange, were in matching color, when she became the bride of William Lucey, Maywood, Ill., Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Trinity Episcopal church, Orange.

Both the long satin gown and the net fingertip veil were in the turquoise shade, relieved by a tiny white enamel bandeau and orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book and a white gardenia. The matron of honor was Mrs. Ray Meierhoff, Olive, the bride's sister, dressed in old rose taffeta with a bouquet of delphinium and maiden hair fern. Miss Glenice Fair, Olive, and Mrs. Clinton Baker, Orange, another sister of the bride, were bridesmaids, both attired in turquoise moire, and with shower bouquets of chrysanthemums in autumn shades.

The best man was Ray Meierhoff, and ushers were Emmett Clark, Santa Ana, and Clinton Baker, Orange. Rudolph Kroener, cousin of the bride, gave her in marriage. The Rev. H. F. Softley read the rites.

Mrs. W. C. Armstrong sang two solos, "This Is Heaven," and "Smiling Irish Eyes," accompanied by Mrs. McFerrill Bauer, who also played the wedding march. Marjenta bouganvillea and white tapers decorated the church.

A wedding supper was served to 28 guests afterward at the Marigold cafe, Anaheim, with Clinton Baker as toastmaster. For traveling, the bride wore a gray tailored suit with blue accessories. They will leave within a few days for their new home in Chicago, where the bridegroom is a fireman. The new Mrs. Lucey graduated from Orange high school in 1935, and the bridegroom was educated in the Omaha, Neb. schools.

DEPARTING FRIENDS FETED AT LUNCHEON

Others seated at the pretty table were Mrs. C. E. Price, Mrs. Guy Miller, Mrs. T. J. Haughton, Mrs. C. C. Violett of Garden Grove.

ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD. — Must be nice to have a fan club. Craig Reynolds thinks it is, and he ought to know. He has two.

A fan club, in case you haven't known one, is a sort of chamber of commerce (at large) devoted to but one cause: the boosting of its pet movie player.

If you're an actor in pictures, all you need to have a fan club is enough admirers to start one. One fan will write you first, requesting permission to form an organization. You'll grant it, and how. Not merely because you're flattered like everything, but because you're smart and you know where your bread, butter and swimming pool money comes from.

THEY GET RESULTS

The organizer usually becomes president of the club, and pretty soon—because movies are seen in many places at the same time, and fans are fans the world over—the club gets members and more members. One member may live in Azusa and another in Weehawken, but they have a strong common bond in their devotion to their favorite movie actor. (Of course they may belong also to other fan clubs that boost other actors, but that doesn't detract from their loyalty to you.)

And if you think, from an actor's point of view, a fan club is a silly business, you're off base. Take it from Reynolds, who appreciates his, that a fan club is something to have.

"You get a bunch of friends, most of whom you've never seen personally, pulling for you to succeed in this business and you've no idea how it helps," he says. "Not only the good will angle, but the practical things they do. They write fan letters, knowing what those mean in the studio's eyes. When a picture of yours is playing, they'll go in a body—and afterward, they'll talk loudly enough about your performance to be sure the exhibitor will hear them. They're loyal, and they'll look for ways and means of helping you get places."

The fan club gets out a newspaper devoted solely to a record of club matters and the actor's career. Imagine coming home from the studio, after the director has bawled you out, to pick up a newspaper devoted exclusively to you and your fan club. (Craig's is called the "Reynolds Rumpus.")

OFFER GOOD CIRCUMSTANCES

In return for all this, the actor sees to it that his clubbers get frequent, individual gifts of personally autographed pictures. And he's nice to visiting club members when they come to Hollywood, as soon or later they do.

Under the impression that a fan club constituted the last word in societies for those with nothing to do, I was surprised to hear Reynolds' testimony that the letters he gets are usually serious and intelligent criticism rather than meaningless gush.

When the president of his bigger fan club came to town, he was so impressed with her intelligence that he made her his secretary. She still is.

MYSTERY PEOPLE . . .

So far as can be determined, the Basques are an entirely distinct people—related to no other race, living or dead. Where either they or their language originated is a complete mystery. Attempts to trace the history of the Basques have resulted in many fantastic theories, one of them affirming that they are survivors of the legendary lost continent of Atlantis.

Basques call themselves "Eskualduak," meaning "clear-speaking people." Their spoken language bears no resemblance to any other in the world. They have no alphabet of their own, using the Roman one.

Every pure blooded Spanish Basque, no matter how menial his station in life, is a noble. Nobility was granted to every Basque and his descendants centuries ago in recognition of the fact that they were never conquered by the Moors.

Until rebel General Franco's troops fought their bitterly contested way into Bilbao, several months ago, the Basques held a record of never having suffered invasion.

The Paradox of Plenty

The best harvests in years are reported all over broad America.

The corn crop will reach 2½ billion bushels, a billion more than last year.

The granaries will groan with 890 million bushels of wheat, a quarter billion more than the year before.

Cotton fields will yield 16 million bales, compared to 14 million a year ago.

Oats, hay, potatoes, beans, walnuts, tobacco are being garnered in abundance.

In the old days the people would be celebrating with harvest songs and festivals and giving thanks to the One responsible for it all.

The bins and smokehouses would be full and every farmer's face would wear a smile.

BUT TODAY—

Secretary Wallace, outlining the agricultural conservation program warns that without such a program—

Normal weather conditions over several seasons will again result in the accumulation of burdensome surpluses.

Congress has appropriated $500,000,000 as a direct subsidy that should reduce productive farms by 20,000,000 acres.

It is pledged to consider other crop control measures. Instead of harvest songs, there is a great fear of the effect of plenty upon prices.

Surely with a third of our great population "ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed," and with millions in other lands needing our products, we should be able to welcome, instead of fear, this new national wealth.

The same thing holds good whether the production is of farm or factory.

There is something terribly strange and unmoral about our peculiar economy of scarcity.

The U. S. agricultural department has stopped trying to control the Japanese beetle. Why not give that job to the Asiatic fleet?

Coiner of Catchy Titles

Did you happen to know that the late Ellis Parker Butler, who wrote "Pigs Is Pigs," one of the funniest stories of his time, was the president of a New York state building and loan association? Well, he was, and we wonder what there is about that job which stimulated so much humor.

While none of his later stories produced the outpouring of nation-wide mirth that his 1906 effort about the guinea pig set in motion, his later titles all carry a lilt and a sparkle. You who are reading "Pigs Is Pigs," now being re-published in this newspaper, will enjoy just the names of some of those later yarns. Among them are:

"The Incubator Baby," "Perkins of Portland," "Great American Pie Co.," "Confessions of a Daddy," "That Pup," "Thin Santa Claus," "Water Goats," "Jackknife Man," "Red Head," "Goats Feathers," "Philo Gubb," "Swatty," "In Pawn," "Ghosts That Ain't," "Jibby Jones and the Alligator," "The Behind Legs of the Orse," "Dollarature."

But don't let us keep you from today's installment about the tribulations of the harassed Mr. Flannery, West-cote agent for the Interurban Express Co., and his steadily multiplying consignment.

The young fellow who takes his first chew of tobacco sometimes finds that it is the unkindest cut of all.

Compromise Council Dispute

Having run the coordinating council squabble through a fine sifter, it seems that there is a sensible compromise. Apparently the only objection offered on the board of supervisors to Dr. Edward Russell is his proposed salary of $3000 a year.

Supervisor Harry Riley says that plenty of good men can be obtained for $175 a month, which is $2100 a year.

Here's the compromise which we suggest: Offer the job to Dr. Russell or any other qualified candidate at $2100 for the first year with an agreement to raise it at the end of that period, provided the whole deal is satisfactory and that it can be demonstrated that $3000 is not too much for such a vital, important, valuable service to our unfortunate youngsters.

It's a sporting proposition, sure. But it gives both sides something tangible to work upon.

After all, we don't want to lose a good man's services for this type of work over a matter of salary, and we think that a year's test will convince all that one is well worth the $3000 figure.

The Mellon melon will not be cut for the government, the treasury department regrets to report.

They Can't Stand Criticism

Sitting on temporary thrones, Adolf and Benito, the Strong Men of Europe, watch in Munich one of the most precise and goose-steppiest war shows staged in a long time.

As the two dictators give their blessing to the assembled brethren, a journalist in Rome breaks out with the announcement that Adolf and Benito will call upon foreign nations to stop their "defamation" of the Fascist system.

Having halted criticism at home simply by resorting to bullets and concentration camps, perhaps the two men feel that they can do it elsewhere merely by threats.

It won't work though. The only way yet discovered to stop criticism without using force or bribery is to remove the cause of censure.

Hitler and Mussolini cannot do that without destroying themselves. They exist by suppression of the speech, rights and consciences of their subjects. Once they remove this oppression, they themselves will topple.

Even when Justice Black lands, he may still be at sea.

FAIR Enough

Communists, Nazis All in Same Basket

By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK.—That was a pretty good speech by Harry Colmery, the retiring commander of the American Legion, especially where he gave the Nazis the rough side of his tongue and loaded Nazi, Fascist and Communist all together on the same boat, outward bound. I understand that the Legion condemned Nazism and Fascism along with Communism in last year's convention, but for some reason—perhaps because we all had grown used to hearing the Legionnaires resolute against Bolshevism alone, as though it were the only dangerous ism in the land—the triple nature of the 1936 resolution was not as widely known as it should have been.

In fact, these dispatches booted one at the time in a high-powered piece saying that if the Legion had been really on its toes to guard the American democracy it would have included Nazism and Fascism, too. In answer to that, Colmery—I am pretty sure it was Colmery, although the letter has gone now—wrote to say, in round numbers, that anyone with a license to smear up good white paper six days a week ought to take the trouble to inform himself before popping off.

EVERYBODY HEARD

Well, anyway, this time everybody heard the retiring commander, and he didn't chew his words. We stand committed to oppose not merely one alien ism, but all such forces," said he. "We who have been privileged with the status of leadership this year have not forgotten the mandate given us at our last national convention, which specifically stated that we oppose Communism, Fascism and Hitlerism alike. Let us remember that our opposition to these forces stops at the boundaries of our own country; we deny them only the right to undermine our own form of government."

"Now we hear from beyond the sea that the German government claims the right and intends to organize Nazi groups in our country to preach and propagandize Nazism here, that it will not tolerate any interference with that policy and that its purpose is to save us from Communism. What a brazen affront!"

"The American people have a right to go Communist if they want to, although the Legion will oppose that to the finish, as it has a right to do. We have the right to whatever form of government we follow, whatever political philosophy we think best for us. That is our business, and it isn't the business of any other government or any other people. We have a right to protect our system, to declare that there will be no Nazis or Nazi demonstrations, and either to bar from entry into this country or send out of it those who preach or practice it."

MIGHT BE CHALLENGED

A legalistic lint-picker might challenge that last part as a potential denial of freedom of speech, but you can't expect an organization of ex-soldiers to extend that freedom to cover harangues against their form of government, remembering that oratory may be the barrage to soften up the country for the attack.

I still insist that Communism is no great danger in this country, because, while we are not a very church-going people, as our persons constantly remind us, one sure way to rile us up is to go around knocking God and religion as the Communists constantly do. Moreover, from the early days of Bolshevism in Russia there is a hanger-on notion about making women common property, and the mere mention of Communism to George Spelvin, the average American, is enough to make him reach for the ball bat, the bread knife or the old sixes in the bureau and stand to the door of his own little love bower to protect his helpmate, his daughters, mother, sisters and all.

GROUPED TO ONE FRONT

But up to now we have been shoving them back on two fronts in the belief that Communism was one sort of menace and Nazism and Fascism were another. Gradually now we are moving them around to one front where they belong, for there is no practical difference between the two elements and the pretended differences are diminishing every day as the Communists go more and more Nazi and Hitler goes more and more Communist.

His latest was a threat to nationalize big business in Germany if it couldn't maintain the pace of preparation for his big war, and we know our economic royalists, Bourbons, or whatever you want to call them, wouldn't care for any of those apples.

Now we had better study up on Fascism so we can recognize it when it pretends to be patriotic, because it has a knack for protective coloration that may deceive the most earnest, honest and loyal defender of democracy. The Klux, the Vigilantes of all kinds, and a large variety of citizens' protective leagues are good samples of the stuff that Fascism is made of.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's note: The Brass Ring this week gives Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming his "one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round" by telling the fascinating story of his career.)

ABOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN.—When Roosevelt went out of his way to traverse a good section of this husky state of Wyoming, while en route to Seattle, he did so partly to gratify the personal peeve of his good friend, Jim Farley, against the senior senator from Wyoming.

The senator, Joseph Christopher O'Mahoney, owes a large slice of his recent political success to Jim Farley, and according to Jim's Tammany-bred ethics there is no greater sin among the political ten commandments than ingratitude.

Joe O'Mahoney was not grateful. Joe and Jim got to know each other back in 1932 when Farley, suitcase in hand, was trekking across the continent slapping backs, spilling reams of green ink, and lining up local leaders for Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Joseph C. O'Mahoney was one of them. In fact, he was one of Farley's chief advisors for the area west of the Mississippi river. The two men became very close, and immediately after the election, Farley made O'Mahoney his first assistant postmaster general, the No. 2 job in the post office department.

O'Mahoney ran the department while Farley was away, did an excellent job in reorganizing it. No two men in the New Deal were better friends, had more confidence than Jim and Joe.

Then in the late fall of 1933, Senator Kendrick of Wyoming suddenly died, and the governor appointed Joe O'Mahoney, Kendrick's former secretary, Jim Farley, returning from Europe, said: "I hate to lose Joe as my chief assistant, but I know he will be a great senator for Wyoming and the nation."

Jim really meant that. But just a brief year later he was ruefully regretting the fact that he had elevated O'Mahoney to public life. For Joe became one of the most effective leaders of the fight against Roosevelt's reform of the supreme court.

LUCK AND POLITICS

Joe O'Mahoney was born, not in Wyoming, but in a Boston suburb, of poor Irish parents and with nothing in life save unflinching courage, a good brain and plenty of luck.

Luck has played an extremely important part in the life of Joe O'Mahoney. If it hadn't been for a sick brother who needed the dryer climate of the West, Joe might be completely unheard of still in Boston. As it was, he arrived with his brother in Denver just 30 years ago with $15 in his pocket.

He got a job with the Boulder, Colo., Daily Herald, and a few years later decided to migrate to another newspaper job in Texas. Again luck intervened. Joe acted on the station, when suddenly he played a hunch—and went to Cheyenne, Wyo., instead. Here he got a job as city editor of the Cheyenne State Leader, owned by John B. Kendrick, then governor of the state. O'Mahoney became his secretary when Kendrick was elected to the senate, and later succeeded to the same suite of offices when Kendrick died.

Had O'Mahoney gone on to Texas, he would have edited the newspaper owned by Albert B. Fall, later secretary of the interior during the Teapot dome scandals.

GOOD RECORD.—Whether you are for the administration or against it, there is no escaping the fact that O'Mahoney has been an able senator. He has been in office less than four years, but already he has made a name for himself. His effectiveness comes in part from his love of a good fight, part from the fact that when he arrived, he knew Washington as few other senators do.

Long years as secretary to Senator Kendrick had taught him all the tricks of the trade—and there are a lot of tricks. One of these is to go slow on forensic exhibitions, save your breath for committee hearings. O'Mahoney is a member of seven different committees and he is a hard worker on all of them.

It was his effectiveness on the judiciary committee which helped materially in defeating Roosevelt's supreme court bill. Joe drafted the famous compromise plan which administration leaders agreed to. Later a New York attorney offered him $100 for the slip of paper on which it was written.

O'Mahoney refused, framed it and took it back to Wyoming during the summer recess.

ON TRIAL.—Unquestionably O'Mahoney's stand on the supreme court hurt him. It hurt him with Roosevelt, and it hurt him with Wyoming voters. After all, Wyoming is a state in which public opinion is focused by the Union Pacific railroad brotherhoods, and they have been smarting over the rebuff which the supreme court handed their railroad retirement act.

With Roosevelt, O'Mahoney's position has not been difficult to maintain. He was careful to indulge in no personal invective, did not vote against the New Deal on every issue just because of the supreme court fight.

Joe wants to come back to the pure New Deal field and if he behaves, probably he will. But meanwhile Roosevelt, and especially Farley, have their fingers crossed.

Joe O'Mahoney has got to work to be readmitted. He has to go through the rites and ceremonies again. Meanwhile the President and Jim Farley both plan to check on him.

And that is one reason the President is trekking through Wyoming right now.

Bright Moments

At the battle of Perryville, during the civil war, Gen. Leonidas Polk, who was also a bishop, was serving with the southern forces. The moment for the advance came, and General Cleburne, raising in his saddle and shaking his fist at the Yankee lines, shouted to his men: "Come on and give them hell, boys; give them hell!" Just then the bishop-general rode up, and wishing to encourage the men, without swearing, he said: "Go on, boys, and give them what Pat Cleburne says."

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent, fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag.

HOW WILL BLACK VOTE?

To the Editor: Even now, before the new Associate Justice Black has taken his judicial oath of office, you are probably wondering how he will act on the cases before the court. It is safe to predict that the new justice will follow the rules of constitutional and general law heretofore laid down, and you need not imagine or expect that his appointment will mean a change in our constitution.

But in the recognition or appraisal of economic facts influencing the application of the rules of law, it is to be expected that he will go along with the left group, rather than the right. It must be remembered that, aside from an attempt to define "direct effect upon commerce" as a matter of law, there was little or no difference in the law between the decision in the Guffey coal cases and the national labor relations act cases of 1935. It was the recognition of the effect of labor conditions on interstate commerce. Both in the District of Columbia minimum wage case and the Washington state minimum wage case, the court adhered to the rule that a law which is arbitrary, unreasonable, or oppressive violates the due process clause. But the appraisal of the economic conditions in the two cases was different. In the first case, the law was considered arbitrary and unreasonable, in the second, the court said it was a reasonable exertion of the police power.

Much has been said lately of the court's efficiency. But the change in personnel will have no effect on this aspect of the court's work. The supreme court has already reached such degree of efficiency in the disposition of cases, that any further increase might result in more haste than good. A decade ago, it took several years from the time a case was docketed, until it was finally disposed of by the court. Now it is only a matter of a few weeks. Of course, this is due chiefly to the jurisdictional act of 1925, which gave the supreme court the widest discretion to determine what cases it will consider on the merits, and because of this discretion, it is not possible to compare the court's efficiency with other tribunals whose jurisdiction is not discretionary.

A suggestion has recently been made that the court ought to hear more cases. But would more numbers increase efficiency? Perhaps it would be wiser for the court to hear fewer cases and write such opinions as would eliminate the growing uncertainties in our law. Yet there is no room for improvement in efficiency in respect of one matter which has escaped discussion, and that is in the preliminary review of cases. The denial of 85 per cent of the petitions and the dismissal of 50 per cent of the appeals bear witness to the fact that there does not seem to be a sufficient understanding between the court and the bar as to what constitutes a proper case to bring to the court. If, as the chief justice wrote to Senator Wheeler, a great many petitions are wholly without merit, so much the worse. It might advance efficiency, if a method were adopted whereby the court would not have to spend a great part of its time on cases which will not be heard.

When the court reconvenes on the first Monday in October, there will be 51 cases ready for argument. GREGORY HANKIN.

SANTA ANA SAYS 'NO PARKING'

(Orange County Watertower)

The traffic and parking question in Santa Ana has again become a main item. The long up of one main thoroughfare has brought it sharply to the fore at this time, but the real cause behind it is the fact that the keen-eyed business observers in the county seat town know that the present situation there is causing them to lose considerable trade, and is developing more and more ill-will against the city.

Congestion on the down town streets in Santa Ana is very bad. Much of it is caused by the overtime parking of cars belonging to the business and professional people themselves. Around the courthouse most of the parking space is taken up by cars of these same folks, together with the county officials and employees.

Traffic has been considerably slowed down by the more or less strict enforcement of speed ordinances. These of course cannot be enforced with equal justice. In fact, it has been noted that a good majority of the tickets go to people from other parts of the county. After one experience they stay away from Santa Ana.

Several attempts have been made to solve the question by means of parking lots. So far they have not been successful. Some blame it on the police department. Others on the business men. Nobody seems to know exactly what is what, but the wise ones are beginning to know that the situation is costing Santa Ana some business.

A wise man will desire no more than he may get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and leave contentedly.

WHIMSIES

DAY BY DAY

With O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK.—Diary: Betimes musing over a newly framed picture of Grandma McIntyre. And a brave letter from Tom Gershtly with all the news of London, a cheer from Walter Catlett and then to the sartor and hatter about some new togs for fall.

Today came two new house-servants, cook and niece, self-effacing folk who said they were Theosophists. For a walk, stopping to see George and Colette Arnsby but they away and sat in a darkened cinema auditorium but outside of a whimpering organ nothing seemed to happen. So I dozed.

In the evening, because of George Olsen's insistence, to see the new dinner-revue place for which his hand tootles. Gay, flashy, pert. But an hour of such tinsel stifles me. And so, my lady and I, early away to Gloria Baker's coming out party at Sand's Point.

Cartoon tragedy: A popular semi-comic strip has been concerned with the little everyday doings of the cartoonist himself and his wife and baby. Not long ago the baby passed away suddenly in its crib. The heartbroken artist is not only through drawing the strip, but declares he will never draw a strip of any kind again.

Bell hops in de luxe hotels say the most generous tippers are stars from Hollywood. Most of them tip a half dollar for the slightest service and a dollar for unusual. This same generous extends to waiters and carriage starters. The cinema folk are in the spotlight from the moment they arrive until they depart and Will Rogers was a topic for whispers. Will Rogers was always a dollar tipper. The grandest woman tipper was Sarah Bernhardt.

Observation: No modern writer has the ability of George Ade to land the reader with the opening paragraph.

Sinclair Lewis has become Barresque in his shrink from the public. After the first of his literary skyrocketing he was the life of the party, not only in New York, but in Paris, London and Berlin. Whenever he landed in the world capitals it was excuse for celebration by the literati—and Lewis was the most convivial of the spirits. But for several years he has been drawing more and more into a shell. He retires to lonely farms in Vermont and Connecticut where he sees no one but his wife and employees. When he visits a publisher he has him to lunch at some obscure eating place where there is not so much as a being recognized. His wife, Dorothy Thompson, in her column features a character she calls The Grouse, who comments on men and affairs. Those who profess to know say The Grouse is Lewis.

Nick Kenny, the husky radio critic, has achieved success in a side line venture that is the topic of millions. A hard-boiled ex-marine, he writes sentimental songs between columns. Among recent hits were "Carelessly" and "Cabin of Dreams." Next to writing the nation's songs, the mass endeavor is to write a newspaper column. The managing editor of a metropolitan daily averages 25 letters a week seeking a columnar berth.

Dictionary didoes: The word Intimacy is highbrow for intimacy. And intimacy (to be poised) recently strolled into my ken, with lieutenant (lucid, clear) and flavescent (turning yellow). Before that xanthone had to do.

Bagatelles: Lady Astor is considering a daily stictol on world affairs for an American syndicate. . . . Bernard Sobel recently sailed for Europe on a house's notice. Even the precise Lowell Thomas once lapsed into: "Whom do you think it was?"

Remarkable Remarks

This is my first and last marriage—Tallulah Bankhead, movie actress who recently married John Emery of New York.

Fair and constructive criticism is always helpful, but I resent the unfair, unjust and petty criticism of President Roosevelt.—Mrs. Susan Cleveland Yeomans, only surviving sister of Grover Cleveland.
